Called by Committee

to Urge Desertion of the Republican Column

FORMAL CALL
The formal call for a Non-partisan League conference here on July 30 will be printed in The North Dakota Non-partisan here as follows:

"To Nonpartisans: Notice is hereby given that there will be a meeting of Nonpartisans held at Bismarck, Wednesday, July 30th at 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of discussing matters in connection with the coming campaign, and any other matters which may be presented affecting the welfare of the League.

"Owing to the scarcity of money at this time, it was decided not to call a state-wide convention, but that the State Executive committee would invite five representative Nonpartisans from each Congressional district to attend.

"The committee wishes it understood that all Nonpartisans are welcome to attend and that their presence will be appreciated the same as if invited.

All League-endorsed candidates, whether successful or not, are especially requested and urged to attend.

OLE KNUTSON,
Chairman State Executive Committee.

Nonpartisan League plans for the fall campaign will be discussed at a conference called by the state executive committee for Bismarck on Wednesday, July 30.

At the same time, it is understood, there will be a conference here of officials of the Farmer-Labor Party formed in North Dakota after the Nonpartisan League convention met last February. While the League executive committee announces that the conference will be for the discussion of matters connected with the campaign and any other matters of interest to the League, many questions will be raised, including:

Shall the League candidates successful in the primary remain in the Republican column?

Shall the League present candidates to oppose the successful Independents in the primary?

Shall the Farmer-Labor Party name a candidate for Governor, in the hope he would poll enough votes to establish the party and gain for it a place on the ballot?

Shall the League formally endorse R. M. LaFollette for the Presidency?

Shall the League, by convention or conference, select a candidate for Congress to oppose Thomas Hall in the Second District and O. B. Burnett in the First?

To Start Campaign
The conference is expected to start the political pot boiling for the fall election in the state, and because of the present disturbed condition and the unusual questions presented to various factions, may have an important bearing in straightening out political lines.

Immediately after the June 25 primary when A. C. Sorlie, League, was nominated for Governor on the League ticket, there was sentiment expressed among the Nonpartisans to "let the Republican ticket ride" through the fall election. Another group sprang up to urge that candidates be put in the field against the successful Independents, and after it became apparent that LaFollette would become a candidate for the Presidency, to have the Leaguers nominated on the Republican ticket, resign and all go in the Independent column, where LaFollette's name will be found.

Another group, which has caused some Leaguers to consider the situation very carefully, is the Farmer-Labor group, which includes among its leaders several leading Nonpartisans. This group wants to cut away from the Republican party label, establish the Farmer-Labor party in the state and present candidates under that party label. The group was defeated in the League convention last February.

The situation may affect the attitude of A. C. Sorlie considerably. In order to establish the Farmer-Labor party it is necessary that a candidate professing the principles of that party cast a vote equal to five per cent of the total. Should the Farmer-Labor group choose a different candidate than Sorlie it would add one more to the gubernatorial race, or he might resign from the Republican ticket and accept the nomination of the Farmer-Labor group, being placed on the ballot by petition.

For Congress
Several potential candidates have sprung up for Congress from the second district, the latest being D. C. Poindexter, state auditor. While Mr. Poindexter declines any comment, (Continued on page three.)

VALUATION OF CITY PROPERTY IS INCREASED

State Board Last Year

SENT TO THE COUNTY

Valuation of city property for taxation, as submitted to the county board of commissioners, by the city commission today, totals $354,072, more than the total submitted last year, although less than the final figures fixed after the state board acted.

The total valuation of real and personal property in the city of Bismarck is fixed at $7,209,527 as compared to $6,854,555 last year. This, however, is excepting railroads and public utility property and banks, assessed originally by the state board, which totalled $634,066 last year.

The value of the various classes of city property, as submitted to the county board by the city board, for the ensuing year is as follows:

Lots	$2,047,120
Land	67,665
Business structures	1,164,000
Residences	2,074,955
Personal property	1,855,787

The same classes of property last year were reported as follows:

Lots	$2,088,932
Land	45,000
Business structures	1,032,350
Residences	1,554,760
Personal property	2,115,523

The figures represent full value, and will be classified under the law, on a 75 per cent basis for the final assessment. The figures may be changed either by the county or state board.

The other classes of property, assessed by the state board, were last year placed, for the city of Bismarck, on a 75-per cent basis, as follows:

Railroads	$280,125; telephones, $82,512; telegraph $1,444; express $396; sleeping car $1,764; banks $258,526.

CHARGED WITH OPERATING CAR INTOXICATED

Stanley, N. D., July 23.—A charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor was filed against Dr. L. O. Kron of Bismarck, who has been held in the county jail here Saturday night when he was taken into custody at Plaza, Kron is due to be arraigned before a justice this afternoon to either stand or waive preliminary examination. In event he should desire to enter a plea he will be taken to either Minot or Williston.

The charge against Dr. Kron is the outgrowth of an accident which occurred while he was taking Mrs. Alfred Bellmore, residing near Plaza, to that city for medical treatment occasioned by a delicate condition. The machine in which they were riding tipped over. Mrs. Bellmore is now in a hospital at Minot.

Dr. Kron has been practicing as a physician and surgeon at Plaza for only a few months. He has also practiced at Kenmare and Velva.

PROPOSED TOUR IS POSTPONED

Minot, N. D., July 23.—The proposed tour of the grand canyon of the Little Missouri in western North Dakota, originally scheduled to leave Minot, July 28, has been postponed to Aug. 4, according to information received in Minot today from E. E. Freden of Ryder, promoters.

The change was made to accommodate a delegation of Minneapolis and St. Paul men who desire to make the trip.

Promoters of the tour plan to ask congress to designate the section that will be visited as a national park. Mr. Freden, who will guide the tour, is a former mail stage driver and at present is fiscal agent of the Parks highway.

BISMARCK MAN TELLS HOW GIRLS SHINGLED HAIR BACK IN 1885

The girls in Bismarck who worry through their first great adventure in shingling—their hair—need not think they are doing something new in the history of feminine adornment.

For back in 1885 the girls wore their hair shingled—cut just like a boy's hair. Rev. G. B. Newcomb of Bismarck today offered proof of this.

He displayed an old daguerreotype of five girls who attended the same boarding preparatory school he attended back in Dundee, New York. There is no mistaking the picture. The shingled hair is there.

The dresses of these during young college girls of the day were somewhat different from those of today, however. The Mother Hubbard craze was on. The picture shows them with long dresses, flowing from a yoke just below the shoulders. The Mother Hubbards were popular, then, Rev. Newcomb says. Women used to appear on the streets in them. They were popular for afternoon strolls.

The five girls shown in the old picture, are Nye sisters, Mattie Morris, a Tracy girl and another whose name is not remembered by Rev. Newcomb. They were country girls in New York, along about 20 to 21 years of age, and had come down to the boarding school. They kept house themselves, Rev. Newcomb said, calling their place Larksley hall. He lived a few doors away.

The most pronounced shingle in the boy's hair cut of the day, shingled, but a little longer than at present. The boys liked a drooping shingle. Some of the girls continued to wear their bangs. The picture shows two of the girls with shingled hair, but pronounced bangs in front.

Shingles was quite general among the girls, Rev. Newcomb said, but was not as universal as bobbed hair is now. The fad lasted a few years, he said, and then the girls went back to long hair. When they did go back to long hair, the girls just wadded their hair under a hair net, drew it tight across the forehead and let it droop behind, he added.

HORSE'S KICK LEADS TO DEATH

Lisbon Youth, Who Joined
Circus, Is Victim

Fargo, July 23.—Loren Forward, 17, of Lisbon, died in a local hospital today of what was said to be septic poisoning, caused directly by injuries sustained when he was kicked by a horse while working with a circus which he and his chum had joined at Lisbon.

According to the boy's statement before his death, he and his chum, named Waite, joined a circus at Lisbon during the day that recently and at the next stand at Edgerley. Forward was kicked severely by a horse. When the injury grew worse and the boy became semi-delirious, a doctor was called, who pronounced septic poisoning.

FOUR STORES ARE LOOTED

Citizens of Foxholm Sleep
Through It All

Minot, N. D., July 23.—Residents of the small village of Foxholm last night slept soundly to hear crackmen who blew four safes in various places of business and escaped with loot totaling only about $60.

The safe in the postoffice failed to yield to a charge of explosives, thereby preventing the probable theft of about $100 in currency and $300 in stamps.

URGE SHEEP ON CASS CO. FARMS

Fargo, July 23.—Three cars of sheep and possibly as many more will be brought into Cass county this year as a result of a campaign to place sheep on farms of the county, in progress under direction of William Guy, Cass county agent, and John Haw, development agent for the Northern Pacific railway, the office of the county agent announced recently.

Plans to secure enough prospective sheep growers in communities of the county to handle a carload of the stock were begun when Mr. Guy and Mr. Haw explained the project at a picnic of patrons of the farmers' elevator at Woods.

William Plath presided at the meeting and other speakers were Judge A. T. Cole, Cass county district court, John Van Arnam of Kindred, and J. M. Witherow of Moorhead.

WISHEK RAIL EMPLOYEE DIES AFTER CRASH

Theodore Deggs Fatally Injured
When Gasoline Car Is Wrecked

Fatally injured when the gasoline car he was riding yesterday jumped the track, crushing and injuring him internally, Theodore Deggs of Wishek died last night, a few hours after being brought in an unconscious condition to the St. Alexis hospital.

The accident occurred near Bradock, and he was brought into Bismarck on the South Sea.

Deggs, who was about 35 years old, was a bridge carpenter for the Soo railroad. He was unmarried, and as far as is known had no relatives, though efforts are being made to locate them. No funeral arrangements have been made.

SHIPMENTS OF CREAM HEAVY

Over $5,400.00 in cream was handled by the Mott branch train in one day, according to Casey Jones, mail carrier on that line of the Northern Pacific. He says that 540 tons were handled on Monday of this week, each of the value of $10 or more.

The increase in the number of cows and the fine pasture this year is evidenced in the cream shipments. Many farmers are receiving over $200 monthly from this source along the Cannon Ball branch this summer, according to residents of that section.

M'LAREN PARTY ON ITS WAY

Flying to Last Stop in Japanese Empire

Tokio, July 23.—The McLaren party of British round the world aviators was winging its way northward through the Kuriles today.

Forced down a week ago on Uropu Island, near the southern end of the Kuriles chain by fog, and for a time feared to have perished, the fliers early today left Tokotan Bay, on Uropu, for Murakami Bay, on Paramushiro, the most northerly of the larger Kuriles, and their last stop in the Japanese empire.

CONFESSED TO MURDER, CLAIM

Nashville, Tenn., July 23.—Frank Harrell, 22, wanted in connection with the murder of Major Samuel McLeary, near Cheraw, South Carolina, on July 2, is in the Nashville police station, according to the Nashville chief of detectives. He has confessed, the police say.

CUTTING OF RYE BEGUN

Minot, July 23.—The first Ward county rye is in shock. Persons who Monday auted to the northern part of the county report having seen a 40-acre field of rye, north of Kenmare, harvested and in the shock.

So far as is known this is the first rye to be cut in this section of the state. Other rye fields will be ready for the binder the latter part of the forepart of next week, it is stated.

THREE NEGROES SOUGHT BY MOB PUT IN PRISON

Saved From Lynching After
Authorities Rush Them to
State Penitentiary

HAD KILLED A GIRL

Slaying Result of Robbery of
Small Store—Identification
Had Failed

Mound City, Ill., July 23. (By the A. P.) Following a series of narrow escapes from mobs which twice threatened their lives, three negroes rested today behind the walls of the Illinois state prison at Menard, Illinois, terrified by their experience.

The three negroes, who were arrested yesterday as suspects in connection with the slaying of Daisy Wilson, pretty 18-year-old girl of Villa Ridge, were taken to Menard as a last resort measure by Sheriff J. J. Hudson of Pulaski county, after the jail at Mounds, Illinois, and later at Mound City, where they had been held, were surrounded by threatening mobs.

As a result of these demonstrations, Governor Le. Small of Illinois, ordered the immediate mobilization of Company K, 130th Illinois infantry, to proceed here and aid county authorities in restoring order.

Robbed Store
The crime for which the negroes were held occurred early Tuesday at Villa Ridge, two negroes called at the home of I. C. Wilson late Monday night stating they wished to make several small purchases at his grocery store. While in the store Wilson was attacked by the negroes, one of whom held a revolver. His daughter, hearing sounds of the struggle rushed to her father's assistance and was killed by a bullet from the negroes' revolver. The negroes fled with a few pennies contained in the bag but were taken to Villa Ridge for identification.

Identification Failed
Wilson, who had been severely beaten, was unable to identify them. Both denied the crime.

During the day the search for suspects continued. An inquest failed to solve the mystery of the shooting and resulted in a verdict of death at the hands of an unidentified negro. A score of negroes were arrested and released with the exception of one negro brought from Cairo, who was held for further questioning.

During one demonstration at Mounds, the mob shot out all the lights in the vicinity of the jail. No one was injured during the shooting.

Weather Report

For 24 hours ending at noon:
Temperatures at 7 a. m. 59
Highest yesterday 84
Lowest yesterday 55
Lowest last night 37
Precipitation .12
Highest wind velocity 17

For Bismarck and vicinity: Mostly fair tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

For North Dakota: Mostly fair tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

General Weather Conditions
The pressure is low over Minnesota and over Utah and it is high over the Northwest. This pressure distribution has been accompanied by precipitation in Minnesota, parts of North Dakota and over the extreme northeastern Rocky Mountain slope. Elsewhere fair weather prevails. Temperatures over the eastern half of the country are somewhat above normal. From the Rockies westward to the Pacific Ocean cool weather prevails.

North Dakota Corn and Wheat Region Summary
For the week ending July 22, 1924.

Generally favorable weather prevailed throughout the week. Timely showers in all sections afforded considerable relief to grains poorly planted and in those sections where droughty conditions prevailed, and greatly benefited crops generally. Spring wheat is good to excellent with no reports of black stem rust received as yet. The crop is mostly ripening. Winter rye is ripening rapidly and some has been cut. Oats and barley are good to excellent. Corn is somewhat backward but generally clean. Flax conditions continue excellent, also potatoes, pastures and ranges.

Chicago, July 23.—Lipstick is essential, but the "bob" is doomed, according to opinions expressed at the seventh annual convention of beauty shop owners meeting here.

One stroke of a lipstick of the proper tint may forestall the spats that sometimes terminate in the divorce courts. Mrs. R. J. Maurer, a delegate, says.

"It's easy enough to win a husband, but it takes a good lipstick to hold him," she asserts.

The complicated culture in rouge years ago will supplant the bobbed tresses, the experts believe.

MUST REWRITE Auto Accidents

Los Angeles, Calif., July 23. Sentenced to read every newspaper in this city every day for the next six months and rewrite the traffic stories in them in his own handwriting was the punishment meted out yesterday to J. G. Lobell, 18, who was charged with speeding.

A sentence of five days in the city jail was suspended by the court providing Lobell would attend his reportorial duties diligently. The youth eagerly accepted the judge's proposal.

STEEL SELLING PLAN ORDERED TO BE CHANGED

Federal Trade Commission
Holds Pittsburgh-Plus
Plan Is Unfair

LESSONS COMPETITION

Long Controversy Has Raged
Over Method of Setting
Freight Rate on Steel

Washington, July 23.—The federal trade commission has ordered the United States Steel corporation to abandon the Pittsburgh-plus system of determining the price of steel.

The commission held to be unfair method of competition the system by which the corporation and its subsidiaries quote price on rolled steel products manufactured by and shipped from their plants outside Pittsburgh at a production base price plus an equivalent to what the freight charges would be from that city. The practice thus was found to be a violation of the federal trade commission act, and further to constitute a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton act.

The commission held specifically that the system is contrary to the public interest, not based on the law of supply and demand, is a price fixing system substitution for the old steel "pools," "Gary dinners" and other methods, and that it is made possible by alleged domination of the steel industry by the United States Steel corporation.

Lessons Competition
It also held that the Pittsburgh-plus system lessens and eliminates competition, retards business in all steel centers except Pittsburgh, and adds greatly to the cost of steel products. It adds $30,000,000 a year to the cost of steel to farmers in 11 western states, the commission declared.

Commissioner Gaskill filed a dissenting opinion in which he held the commission to be without authority to prohibit the steel corporation, operating its several plants within the law, from maintaining the same price at all its plants. While not specifically disagreeing with the commission's findings as to the effect of the Pittsburgh-plus system, he declared the "law does not require absolute freedom of competition" nor does "the law enjoin the observance of sound economic principles."

Commissioning in the announcement of its order what is believed would be the effect of abandonment of the system, the commission said it would build up all steel producing and consuming sections outside of Pittsburgh; return to the western and southern steel users the natural advantages of the location; decentralize the steel industry and industries using steel products; enforce price competition among the steel producers, and eliminate other alleged evils in the industry.

The commission, in its order, forbade the United States Steel corporation or its subsidiaries, from quoting any steel price without listing separately the price of the steel and the transportation charges.

The United States Steel corporation, in the hearings and arguments before the commission, contended that the Pittsburgh-plus system was the result of competition in the steel industry, and that it was created by free operation of the law of supply and demand.

The fight over Pittsburgh-plus has been one of the most bitter ever waged before the federal trade commission. The entire proceedings were brought on by the commission's own investigations, and hearings were held at virtually all steel producing points. Later the fight was centralized here, with attorneys for the United States Steel corporation lined up against the commission's attorneys, and attorneys for 32 associated middlewestern states and western steel consumers who joined in the move against the system.

Presentation of Case in
Chicago Court Room

COLD MURDER, HE SAYS

Tells of Planning of the Kidnaping For Ransom and The Slaying

Chicago, July 23.—Mrs. Jacob Franks, mother of young Robert, victim of Leopold and Loeb took the witness stand late this afternoon.

Clothed in modish attire of black with simple white trimmings, white gloves and small black turban hat, the grieving mother told in a broken voice of her son's last day at home, the circumstances of his disappearance and of the feverish, almost distracted effort of herself and husband to regain the custody of their boy.

Chicago, July 23.—Calmly, but with eyes moistened by tears, Jacob Franks, wealthy father of the 14-year-old victim of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, recited on the witness stand today the story of his boy's disappearance.

Called by the state as its second witness, after States Attorney Robert E. Crowe, in his opening statement had demanded again the death penalty for the two brilliant, 19-year-old college students, Franks answered in a firm voice the queries of the prosecutor and identified the small remnants of clothing and other personal possessions found on or near the body. His testimony was unfinished when the court recessed for luncheon.

The morning session was occupied principally by the opening statement of States Attorney Robert E. Crowe, whose denunciation of the murderers, drew sharp objection from Clarence Darrow, attorney for the defense.

It was the most cruel, cowardly, dastardly murder ever committed in the history of American jurisprudence," exclaimed Mr. Crowe. "That is a ridiculous exaggeration," rejoined Mr. Darrow.

The defendants sat apparently unmoved throughout the States Attorney's oration and left the room almost jauntily as the court recessed. They laughed audibly as they started back to their cells.

Chicago, July 23.—The kidnaping of 14-year-old Robert Franks by Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb was a strictly commercial prosecution, the abductors wrote in their first letter to the father of their victim.

The letter, read today in the opening of the hearing before Chief Justice John R. Caverly to determine the penalty the two college youths shall pay for the death of young Franks, to which for the second time they attached their lawyer's plea of guilty.

States Attorney Robert E. Crowe, in a formal opening statement, recited the boys' planning for the "little fellow's murder" from what he said was the inception of a plot in the minds of the two brilliant sons of prominent families here last fall.

Every detail of the planning, preparation, unforseen by the young conspirators, was reviewed by the prosecutor.

Tells of Crime
He told of perfection of details for the plot on May 21 of this year and of a careful deliberation afterwards on the question of who should be their victims. The sons of numerous wealthy families were considered before the young Franks was agreed upon.

The defendants were styled "cold, calculating murderers."

Listening to the state's recital of the details of the boys' death with apparent equanimity of spirit, the two defendants sat calmly in their chairs behind their counsel.

Frequently one would whisper to the other as various details of their crime were heralded to the court.

Leopold frequently sat virtually motionless for periods of 10 to 15 minutes during the recital.

Leopold Motionless
Loeb, however, frequently adjusted his stylish bow tie, moistened his lips with his tongue and picked at specs on his sleeve.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, sat quietly beside his attorney, observing him with apparent determination but wholly without show of feeling.

Nathan Leopold Sr., father of one of the 19-year-old intellectuals whose fate is at stake, sat within a few feet of his son and another son. His brow was creased with deep lines for evidence of a parent's bowed spirit and heavy heart.

BISMARCK MAN TELLS HOW GIRLS SHINGLED HAIR BACK IN 1885

The girls in Bismarck who worry through their first great adventure in shingling their hair—need not think they are doing something new in the history of feminine adornment.

For back in 1885 the girls wore their hair shingled—cut just like a boy's hair. Rev. G. B. Newcomb of Bismarck today offered proof of this. He displayed an old daguerre-type of five girls who attended the same boarding preparatory school he attended back in Dundee, New York. There is no mistaking the picture. The shingled hair is there.

The dresses of these daring young college girls of the day were somewhat different from those of today, however. The Mother Hubbard craze was on. The picture shows them with long dresses, flowing from a yoke just below the shoulders. The Mother Hubbards were popular then, Rev. Newcomb says. Women used to appear on the streets in them. They were popular for afternoon strolls.

HORSE'S KICK LEADS TO DEATH

Lisbon Youth, Who Joined
Circus, Is Victim

Fargo, July 23.—Loren Forward, 17, of Lisbon, died in a local hospital today of what was said to be septic poisoning, caused directly by injuries sustained when he was kicked by a horse while working with a circus which he and his chum had joined at Lisbon.

According to the boy's statement before his death, he and his chum, named Waite, joined a circus at Lisbon during its stay there recently and at the next stand at Edgley, Forward was kicked severely by a horse. When the injury grew worse and the boy became semi-delirious, a doctor was called, who pronounced septic poisoning.

FOUR STORES ARE LOOTED

Citizens of Foxholm Sleep
Through It All

Minot, N. D., July 23.—Residents of the small village of Foxholm last night slept soundly, to hear the crackmen who blew four safes in various places of business and secured with loot totalling only about $60.

The safe in the postoffice failed to yield to a charge of explosives, thereby preventing the probable theft of about $100 in currency and $300 in stamps.

URGE SHEEP ON CASS CO. FARMS

Fargo, July 23.—Three cars of sheep and possibly as many more will be brought into Cass county this year as a result of a campaign to place sheep on farms of the county in progress under direction of William Guy, Cass county agent, and John Haw, development agent for the Northern Pacific railway, the office of the county agent announced recently.

Plans to secure enough prospective sheep growers in communities of the county to handle a carload of the stock were begun when Mr. Guy and Mr. Haw explained the project at a picnic of patrons of the farmers' elevator at Woods.

William Plath presided at the meeting and other speakers were Judge A. T. Cole, Cass county district court, John Van Arnam of Kindred, and J. M. Witherow of Moorhead.

SHIPMENTS OF CREAM HEAVY

Over $5,400.00 in cream was handled by the Mott branch train in one day, according to Casey Jones, mail carrier on that line of the Northern Pacific. He says that 540 tons were handled on Monday of this week, each of the value of $10 or more.

The increase in the number of cows and the fine pasture this year is evidenced in the cream shipments. Many farmers are receiving over $200 monthly from this source along the Cannon Ball branch this summer, according to residents of that section.

McLAREN PARTY ON ITS WAY

Flying to Last Stop in Japanese Empire

Tokio, July 23.—The McLaren party of British round the world aviators was winging its way northward through the Kuriles today.

Forced down a week ago on Urup Island, near the southern end of the Kuriles chain by fogs, and for a time feared to have perished, the fliers early today left Tokotan Bay, on Urup, for Murakami Bay, on Paramashiri, the most northerly of the larger Kuriles, and their last stop in the Japanese empire.

CONFESSED TO MURDER, CLAIM

Nashville, Tenn., July 23.—Frank Harrell, 22, wanted in connection with the murder of Major Samuel McLeary, near Cheraw, South Carolina, on July 2, is in the Nashville police station, according to the Nashville chief of detectives. He has confessed, the police say.

CUTTING OF RYE BEGUN

Minot, July 23.—The first Ward county rye is in shock.

Persons who Monday autored to the northern part of the county report having seen a 40-acre field of rye, north of Kenmare, harvested and in the shock.

So far as is known this is the first rye to be cut in this section of the state. Other rye fields will be ready for the binder the latter part of the forepart of next week, it is stated.

WISHEK RAIL EMPLOYEE DIES AFTER CRASH

Theodore Deggs Fatally Injured
When Gasoline Car
Is Wrecked

Fatally injured when the gasoline car he was riding yesterday jumped the track, crashing and injuring him internally, Theodore Deggs of Wishek died last night, a few hours after being brought in an unconscious condition to the St. Alexis hospital. The accident occurred near Bismarck on the South So.

Deggs, who was about 35 years old, was a bridge carpenter for the Soo railroad. He was unmarried, and as far as is known had no relatives, though efforts are being made to locate them. No funeral arrangements have been made.

RAIL STRIKES IN SOME PARTS OF MORTON CO.

Considerable Damage Is Done on Several Farms in Hebron Territory

Mandan, July 23.—Barns on two farms were destroyed, other small buildings were demolished by wind and a score or more farmers in the vicinity of Hebron, western Morton county, suffered from a 40 per cent to a total loss to crops from hail which swept over a considerable territory about 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The storm, coming from the west, appeared to split insofar as hail fell, part going north and the heavier storm swinging south from Antelope. Farmers living north and northeast of Hebron and northwest of New Salem suffered from a ten to 40 and in some cases 60 per cent crop loss from hail.

However, to the south of Antelope at least seven farms were denuded of crops. The hailstones were not large but fell in quantity to cover the prairie in places. Practically all of the hail losses were covered in part by insurance.

There was no rain at Carson or other points in Grant county.

PEACE EFFORT HAS FAILED

Santos, Brazil, July 23.—The Sao Paulo revolutionists are reported on reliable authority to have failed in efforts to enter into negotiations with the Brazilian government for an armistice. President Bernardes having announced that the rebels must face the penalty of the Brazilian laws.

Lipstick Is Held Essential, Fight the 'Bob'

Chicago, July 23.—Lipstick is essential but the "bob" is doomed, according to opinions expressed at the seventh annual convention of beauty shop owners meeting here.

One stroke of a lipstick of the proper tint may forestall the spats that sometimes terminate in the divorce courts, Mrs. R. J. Maurer, a delegate, says.

"It's easy enough to win a husband, but it takes a good lipstick to hold him," she asserts.

The complicated coiffure in vogue years ago will supplant the bobbed tresses, the experts believe.

THREE NEGROES SOUGHT BY MOB PUT IN PRISON

Authorities Rush Them to
State Penitentiary

HAD KILLED A GIRL

Slaying Result of Robbery of
Small Store—Identification
Had Failed

Mound City, Ill., July 23. (By the A. P.)—Following a series of narrow escapes from mobs which twice threatened their lives, three negroes rested today behind the walls of the Illinois state prison at Joliet, Illinois, terrified by their experience.

The three negroes were arrested yesterday as suspects in connection with the slaying of Daisy Wilson, pretty 18-year-old girl of Villa Ridge, were taken to Menard as a last resort measure by Sheriff J. J. Hudson of Pulaski county, after the jail at Mound City, Illinois, and later at Mound City, where they had been held, were surrounded by threatening mobs.

As a result of these demonstrations, Governor Len Small of Illinois, ordered the immediate mobilization of Company K, 130th Illinois infantry, to proceed here and aid county authorities in restoring order.

The crime for which the negroes were held occurred early Tuesday at Villa Ridge, two negroes called at the home of I. C. Wilson late Monday night stating they wished to make several small purchases at his grocery store. While in the store Wilson was attacked by the negroes, one of whom held a revolver. His daughter, hearing sounds of the struggle rushed to her father's assistance and was killed by a bullet from the negroes' revolver. The negroes fled with a few pennies contained in the bag but were taken to Villa Ridge for identification.

Identification Failed
Wilson, who had been severely beaten, was unable then to identify them. Both denied the crime.

During the day the search for suspects continued. An inquest failed to solve the mystery of the shooting and resulted in a verdict of death at the hands of an unidentified negro. A score of negroes were arrested and released with the exception of one negro brought from Cairo, who was held for further questioning.

During one demonstration at Mounds, the mob shot out all the lights in the vicinity of the jail. No one was injured during the shooting.

Weather Forecasts
For Bismarck and vicinity: Mostly fair tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

For North Dakota: Mostly fair tonight and Thursday. Not much change in temperature.

General Weather Conditions
The pressure is low over Minnesota and over Utah and it is high over the Northwest. This pressure distribution has been accompanied by precipitation in Minnesota, parts of North Dakota and over the extreme northeastern Rocky Mountain slope. Elsewhere fair weather prevails. Temperatures over the eastern half of the country are somewhat above normal. From the Rockies westward to the Pacific Ocean cool weather prevails.

North Dakota Rain and Wheat
Region Summary
For the week ending July 22, 1924:

Generally favorable weather prevailed throughout the week. Timely showers in all sections afforded considerable relief to grains poorly planted and in those sections where droughty conditions prevailed, and greatly benefited crops generally. Spring wheat is good to excellent with no reports of black stem rust received as yet. The crop is mostly headed and some early sown is ripening. Winter rye is ripening rapidly and some has been cut. Oats and barley are good to excellent. Corn is somewhat backward but generally clean. Flax conditions continue excellent. Also potatoes, pastures and ranges.

Los Angeles, Calif., July 23.—Sentenced to read every newspaper in this city every day for the next six months and rewrite the traffic stories in them in his own handwriting was the punishment meted out yesterday to J. G. Lobell, 18, who was charged with speeding.

A sentence of five days in the city jail was suspended by the court providing Lobell would attend his reportorial duties diligently. The youth eagerly accepted the judge's proposal.

STEEL SELLING PLAN ORDERED TO BE CHANGED

Federal Trade Commission
Holds Pittsburgh-Plus
Plan Is Unfair

LESSONS COMPETITION

Long Controversy Has Raged
Over Method of Setting
Freight Rate on Steel

Washington, July 23.—The federal trade commission has ordered the United States Steel corporation to abandon the Pittsburgh-plus system of determining the price of steel.

The commission held to be unfair method of competition the system by which the corporation and its subsidiaries quote price on rolled steel products manufactured by and shipped from their plants outside Pittsburgh at a production base price plus an equivalent to what the freight charges would be from that city. The practice thus was found to be a violation of the federal trade commission act, and further to constitute a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton act.

The commission held specifically that the system is contrary to the public interest, not based on the law of supply and demand, is a price fixing system substituting for the old steel "pools," "Garry dinners" and other methods, and that it is made possible by the alleged domination of the steel industry by the United States Steel corporation.

It also held that the Pittsburgh-plus system lessens and eliminates competition, retards business in all steel centers except Pittsburgh, and adds greatly to the cost of steel products. It adds $30,000,000 a year to the cost of steel to farmers in 11 western states, the commission declared.

Commissioner Gaskill filed a dissenting opinion in which he held the commission to be without authority to prohibit the steel corporation, operating its several plants within the law, from maintaining the same price at all its plants, but he did not specifically disagreeing with the commission's findings as to the effect of the Pittsburgh-plus system, he declared the "law does not require absolute freedom of competition" nor does "the law enjoin the observance of sound economic principles."

Summarizing in the announcement of its order what is believed would be the effect of abandonment of the system, the commission said it would build up all steel producing and consuming sections outside of Pittsburgh; return to the western and southern steel users the natural advantages of the location; decentralize the steel industry and industries using steel products; enforce price competition among the steel producers, and eliminate other alleged evils in the industry.

The commission, in its order, forbade the United States Steel corporation or its subsidiaries from quoting any steel price without listing separately the price of the steel and the transportation charges.

The United States Steel corporation, before the commission, contended that the Pittsburgh-plus system was the result of competition in the steel industry, and that it was created by free operation of the law of supply and demand.

The fight over Pittsburgh-plus has been one of the most bitter ever waged before the federal trade commission. The entire proceedings were brought on by the commission's own investigations, and hearings were held at virtually all steel producing points. Later the fight was centralized here, with attorneys for the United States Steel corporation lined up against the commission's attorneys, and attorneys for 32 associated middlewestern states and western steel consumers who joined in the move against the system.

Presentation of Case in
Chicago Court Room

COLD MURDER, HE SAYS

Tells of Planning of the Kidnapping For Ransom and
The Slaying

Chicago, July 23.—Mrs. Jacob Franks, mother of young Robert, victim of Leopold and Loeb took the witness stand late this afternoon.

Clad in modish attire of black with simple white trimmings, white gloves and small black turban hat, the grieving mother told in a broken voice of her son's last day at home, the circumstances of his disappearance and of the feverish, almost distracted effort of herself and husband to regain the custody of their boy.

Chicago, July 23.—Calmly, but with eyes moistened by tears, Jacob Franks, wealthy father of the 14-year-old victim of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, recited on the witness stand today the story of his boy's disappearance.

Called by the state as its second witness, after States Attorney Robert E. Crowe, in his opening statement had demanded again the death penalty for the two brilliant, 19-year-old college students, Franks answered in a firm voice the queries of the prosecutor and identified the small remnants of clothing and other personal possessions found on or near the body.

His testimony was unfinished when the court recessed for luncheon. The morning session was occupied principally by the opening statement of States Attorney Robert Crowe, whose denunciation of the murderers drew sharp objection from Clarence Darrow, attorney for the defense.

"It was the most cruel, cowardly, dastardly murder ever committed in the history of American jurisprudence," exclaimed Mr. Crowe.

"The state is entitled to a full and complete trial," rejoined Mr. Darrow. The defendants sat apparently unmoved throughout the States Attorney's oration and left the room almost jauntily as the court recessed. They laughed audibly as they started back to their cells.

Chicago, July 23.—The kidnapping of 14-year-old Robert Franks by Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb was a strictly commercial prosecution, the abductors wrote in their first letter to the father of their victim.

The letter, read today in the opening of the hearing before Chief Justice John R. Caverly to determine the penalty the two college youths shall pay for the death of young Franks, to which for the second time they affirmed their lawyer's plea of guilty.

States Attorney Robert E. Crowe, in a formal opening statement, recited the boys' planning for the "little fellow's murder" from what he said was the inception of a plot in the minds of the two brilliant sons of prominent families here last fall.

Every detail of the planning, preparation, unforced by the young conspirators, was reviewed by the prosecutor.

He told of perfection of details for the plot on May 21 of this year and of a careful deliberation afterwards on the question of who should be their victims. The sons of numerous wealthy families were considered before young Franks was agreed upon.

The defendants were styled "cold, calculating murderers."

Listening to the state's recital of the details of the boys' death with apparent equanimity of spirit, the two defendants sat calmly in their chairs behind their counsel.

Frequently one would whisper to the other as various details of their crime was heralded to the court. Leopold frequently sat virtually motionless for periods of 10 to 15 minutes during the recital.

Leopold Motionless
Loeb, however, frequently adjusted his stylish bow tie, moistened his lips with his tongue and picked at specs on his sleeve.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain boy, sat quietly beside his attorney—chewing gum with apparent determination but wholly without show of feeling.

Nathan Leopold Sr., father of one of the 19-year-old intellectuals whose fate is at stake, sat within a few feet of his son and another son. His brow was creased with deep lines for evidence of a parent's bowed spirit and heavy heart.

SLOPE COUNTY TO BUILD 24 MILES OF ROAD

Chairman of Board of Commissioners Seeking Funds For County

Building of 24 miles of highway between Amund and Marmarth is contemplated by Slope county as one of the efforts of southwestern North Dakota counties to build better roads, according to W. F. Dyer, chairman of the board of county commissioners of Slope county, in Bismarck today. The estimated cost of the 24 miles of road is $75,000.

Last year the county completed a road from New England to Bowman through Amund, a county line to county line road, in about 10 miles of work to the county. The work was done by the county.

Dyer was here to seek approval of Slope county's share of the motor vehicle license funds, to be used in the new road work.

Slope county does not use the federal aid plan of road building, according to Mr. Dyer, who said the system was too expensive for the southwestern counties, usually costing over $2,000 a mile. The road which will be built this year in Slope county will be paid for with motor vehicle tax money and local taxes.

Last week he said, Adams county signed up for 8 miles of federal and road work, costing $24,000.

Mr. Dyer reported crops in fine condition throughout southwestern North Dakota. Early crops are still green and late crops are coming along well, he said. There is no sign of rust thus far, he said.

Dr. Robinson to Market His Invention of Unusual Baby Carriage

A baby carriage the "Winsum", which may be used winter and summer, and which can be carried in a car while traveling, has been invented and patented by Dr. C. O. Robinson, and is now being manufactured by the Robinson-Hallum Manufacturing company at Minneapolis, the factory making its first sales last week. Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Miller have the first model received here.

Dr. Robinson has been working on the idea of the carriage which can be converted into a sleigh in winter, and when the hood and wheels are removed, into a comfortable bassinet, for about ten years, being assisted in perfecting the idea mechanically by his brother-in-law, Clarence Hallum.

The carriage is made of reed, and can be obtained in several models, in various kinds and qualities of upholstery. The more expensive models are equipped with electric lights. The conversion into the desired carriage, sleigh or bassinet is fairly easy. When the bassinet is wanted, legs which fold up underneath are dropped, and furnish steady support. The hood is adjustable, and the body can be swung around on the wheels. The company will also make doll carriages and coaster wagons.

GERMAN PARTY TAKES STAND

Demands Evacuation of the Ruhr by French

Berlin, July 23.—The German National Party of the Reichstag has adopted a resolution which it has sent to the government demanding that Germany shall not participate in the London inter-allied conference except on an equal footing with the allies.

The party also demands that the prisoners held by the French and Belgians be released and exiles be allowed to return to the occupied territory. In addition the resolution insists on evacuation of the Ruhr, the restoration of German railroads and the recognition of authority of the German states, that Germany receive guarantees against further sanctions and that the period of occupation of the bridge-head be calculated from October, 1920.

The party declares it will oppose all proposed settlements which do not meet with its approval.

WHITE WOMAN SIKI'S BRIDE

Sengelese Pugilist Is Married in New York

New York, July 23.—Battling Siki, Sengelese pugilist, was married here today to Lillian Werner, white, of this city. The boxer's real name, Louise Fall, was signed to the marriage license.

The boxer gave his age as 23 years and his birthplace as St. Louis, Senegal, Africa. The white bride, who gave her age as 30 years, described herself as an artist. Siki also described himself as an "artist."

Siki stated on the license that he had never been married. Dispatches from Europe at the time the boxer was preparing to come to this country stated that he had a wife and family who had accompanied him from Africa.

DIVERSITY ON PROGRAM

Rotarians Hold Interesting Noon Luncheon Meeting

The Rotarian luncheon this noon enjoyed a snappy and diversified program. B. K. Skeels, chairman of the attendance committee, explained a contest planned to increase attendance. J. L. Bell was lauded for his achievements of the week as editor of "The Buffalo Horn." C. L. Young told of his visit with the Rotary Club of Grand Forks and Dr. E. P. Quinn spoke briefly of his experiences at Fort Snelling.

B. K. Skeels doubled on the program by celebrating the birthday of Henry Murphy and L. H. Richmond presented R. M. Bergeson with an anniversary token.

Robert Birdell talked interestingly of "Life at the University." He gave a resume of student activities, athletic, scholastic, and social. Judge Nuesse next spoke on "State Institutions" dwelling principally on the State University. As an early graduate his comparison of the student of the present day student body, faculty, and buildings gave an excellent demonstration of the complexities of modern life. The Judge emphasized the popular ignorance of what the public monies go for and the importance of knowledge along that line. He pointed out that the money expended at the State University and other state institutions and especially the manner of its expenditure would determine the next generation of citizens.

Oil Spring in 1629

The first reference to the discovery of petroleum in America is contained in a letter written in 1629 by Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a French missionary to the Indians. He had crossed the Niagara river and made his way southward through western New York into northern Pennsylvania, where he found a spring from which oil flowed.

This oil was highly esteemed by the Indians for medicinal uses, says the Detroit News. The letter of the priest was published in 1632 in Sagard's "Histoire de Canada."

For Office Men

"Sedentary work," said the lecturer, "tends to lessen the endurance."

"In other words," butted in the smart student, "the more one sits the less one can stand."

"Exactly," retorted the lecturer, "and if one lies a great deal one's standing is lost completely."

Described to a T

But No Championship Is at Stake!

There is perpetual warfare in Robert O. Kearns' back yard in Omaha. "Trixie," Kearns' dog, and "Dempsey," a battling rooster, are going to it every day. But neither one ever really succeeds in licking the other. They go to it tooth, spur, claw and beak until they get tired. Then side by side they drink together out of the barnyard pan.

HOARDED $400,000,000 IS DEAD-WEIGHT ON BUSINESS

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift.

HOARDING is as unlike true thrift as a pile of iron ore is unlike a powerful locomotive. The ore represents potential strength and power. But it must be put through certain processes of preparation and become ACTIVE before its usefulness is made available. Hoarded wealth is a dead weight on business. Between the miser and the spendthrift there is little to choose when they are placed on the scales of moral and social valuation.

The hoarding processes grade upward from the real misers to those who for various reasons hide away a share of their earnings rather than place it where it will flow through the regular channels of business.

Some interesting and rather amazing figures were compiled recently in the United States Treasury Department. These figures reveal that the amount of money which may be termed as hoarded in this country amounts to $400,000,000. There are 8,000 persons who are definitely classed as misers with $44,000,000 hidden away in secret places.

Among our foreign population, a Treasury official estimates that some two million hoard $225,000,000 of their earnings. In rural districts, especially where banking facilities are inadequate, there is much hoarding. This is shown by the fact that when a bank is started in a rural locality where no bank existed before, personal deposits made up largely from hoarded sums at once begin to make their appearance. About $125,000,000 it is officially estimated, is hoarded in rural communities.

One of the great benefits which come from thrift education lies in the fact that people are made to see that the more hoarding of money is not thrift.

Real thrift is the elimination of waste. And within this definition hoarding must be considered wasteful because the individual loses the rightful income from his savings, and business in general loses the benefits that should come from these additions to the legitimate channels of trade and investment.

It is well to understand that when the saving of money is carried to the point of keeping it continually out of circulation such habits come very far from being within the rightful meaning of thrift.

NOT HIS DUTY TO GO AFTER TAXES, HE SAYS

County Treasurer J. A. Flow, commenting today on the discussion at Monday night's meeting of the city commission regarding unpaid taxes, said it was not his duty to collect delinquent taxes.

"Delinquent personal property taxes are turned over to the sheriff on October 15 each year," he said. "Real estate taxes that have been sold on the second Tuesday in December go back to the county auditor and the county commissioners to look after final disposition."

Mr. Flow said that he received payment of taxes when due, but not delinquent taxes.

HOURS OF LABOR LAW INVOLVED

Judge Jansons in district court this morning heard a return on an order to show cause, issued in the case of Fred Bobb, restaurateur, charged with violating the hours of labor law for women waitresses. The order was to show cause why a fine of $100 and costs should not be ordered into effect. The court ordered this done, after the states attorney alleged violations of the law had continued. A stay of proceeding was granted by the court, on request of Mr. Bobb's lawyer, who will appeal to the supreme court, he said. Mr. Bobb put up a $200 appeal bond. The action may result in a tough test of the hours of labor for women.

PARROT TALKED TOO MUCH

Polly, family parrot in the Simon Silverberg household at Baltimore, Md., became an important witness in Mrs. Silverberg's suit for separation from her husband. Mrs. Silverberg (shown above) had been away on a visit and, upon her return, found the parrot shrieking the name of "Cora"—at least, such is the allegation. Now Mrs. Silverberg's name happens to be Rose, and she became suspicious. She won her court action.

Here are some of the leaders of Senator Robert M. LaFollette's presidential campaign. The picture was taken in Washington during a two-day conference of the National Committee for Progressive Political Action, called to select a vice presidential nominee and formulate campaign plans. Seated, from left to right, are: Arthur E. Holder, secretary of the committee; Parley P. Christensen, Utah, third-party candidate for president in 1920; William H. Johnston, president International Union of Machinists, who served as chairman of the Cleveland convention that nominated LaFollette; and John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, LaFollette's national campaign manager. Standing, left to right, are R. T. Wood, and Herman L. Ekern, attorney general of Wisconsin.

Along with condemnation of the St. Paul meeting went a defeat for William Mahoney, of St. Paul, its sponsor, who, under a suspension of rules was given a full half an hour to plead for passing up the matter without formal action.

Mahoney said such action would be "merely to crucify me, but there will be a resurrection."

The 24 HOUR MAN of Modern Business

Let us look at a three-ring circus and marvel. Here are literally hundreds of people, hundreds of animals, and more paraphernalia than you find in a small-sized factory—all on the move.

Here is a complete city, set up every day in a strange place—giving a parade and two performances—taken down, packed away, loaded on a train, moved to another city and set up again.

Any business can learn something about efficiency from a circus.

Take the "24-hour man" as one example.

The "24-hour man" goes one day ahead of the circus. He contracts for all the food for this army of performers. He arranges to have a local bakery deliver bread; he buys vegetables and meat; he buys tons of hay for the horses and elephants.

The "24-hour man" sees the city officials. He arranges for a license; he arranges for water, piped to "the lot;" sometimes he arranges for electricity, he sees that "the lot" itself is clear and ready for occupancy the next day.

Then comes the circus. All it has to do is go to "the lot," set up, give its parade and its two performances.

If it were not for the "24-hour man" the circus itself would stand a fair chance of wasting its time and spending its energy running down and taking care of the details which one man handled so efficiently the day before.

Does Your Business Need a 24 - Hour Man?

The "24-hour man" of business is printing.

Printing takes care of a thousand details which would otherwise fall upon a salesman.

Printing thus helps your salesman—whether they are in a retail store or traveling "on the road." It enables your salesman to perform as they are intended to perform—by bringing in sales.

Without printing, any salesman must waste time in explaining your policy—building confidence—explaining the merits of merchandise—removing obstacles to buying, from the purchaser's mind.

With printing, you can do these things for your salesman.

That's just one advantage of printing. Let us tell you more of them.

MARKET NEWS
WHEAT COMES BACK TODAY

New Bearish Reports From Canada Boost Price

Chicago, July 23. (By the A. P.)—Wheat quickly advanced in price today after a wavering start. The upturn was due chiefly to active buying, based on announcement that a complete survey of crop conditions in Alberta indicated only 40,000,000 bushels yield this season as against 160,000,000 bushels last year. Other estimates suggested that the Canadian Northwest as a whole would produce less than half the 1923 total. Opening prices which ranged from one cent decline to one cent advance, with September $1.23 to $1.26 and December $1.25 to $1.28, were followed by gains all around.

Subsequently black rust reports from Manitoba brought about an excited further advance. All high price records for the season were broken and upturns from the day's bottom figures amounted to eight cents. The close was wild, 6-8 to 7-1-4 cents net higher. September $1.30 to $1.30 1-8 and December $1.32 5-8 to $1.32 7-8.

Some Red Rust Appears in Fields in Vicinity

Black rust has not made its appearance in this section of the state, according to O. W. Roberts, weather observer. Mr. Roberts yesterday visited several fields near Mandan and found some red rust, but no black rust. Some red rust also has been seen in this county, but is not regarded as likely to do much damage. Reports that black rust had been found are said by Mr. Roberts to be erroneous.

WORKER ON BRIDGE DIES

Body of Employee in Cass
County Cut in Two

Fargo, July 23.—One Fargo man is dead and another is in a local hospital unconscious, the results of two accidents yesterday afternoon. The dead man is Ole Jacobson, foreman for the J. A. Jardine company bridge crew working near Page.

Carl Johnson, of the contracting firm of Meinecke & Johnson, suffered a serious fracture to the base of his skull when he fell about 20 feet in the new Herby building now under construction, hitting the floor with his head.

Jacobson was killed about 4 p. m. yesterday when a pile driver fell upon him crushing his head and literally cutting him in two from his right shoulder to his waist. He died almost instantly. E. F. Moore, county coroner, returned from Page last night and reported the death as accidental.

Jacobson, who was foreman of the bridge crew employed by the J. A. Jardine company of Fargo, was called to inspect a pile driver which would not function. The weight of the machine had been drawn up, but refused to drop. The foreman stood almost directly under the weight looking up at it, when it dropped hitting him on the head and right shoulder.

The body was taken to the Lindsey funeral parlors at Page and will be taken to this city today and will lie at the O. J. Hanson funeral home.

Selling Blood Is Profitable

Vancouver, B. C., July 23.—Transfusion of blood by young men here at "$25 a half pint" has proved profitable, according to employment officials, who say there has been a demand for such services. Hospitals require healthy men for the purpose. Advertising has brought plenty of applicants usually.

Obtain Paint Remover
by Processing Corncobs

Furfural is the aldehyde of furfuran and is obtained from processing of corncobs. The corncob and water are placed in an autoclave and steam at about 130 pounds pressure is admitted and the mixture is permitted to digest for about two hours, after which the furfural is blown off by steam, condensed and collected. The furfural is then separated from the water by distillation. The yield is about 120 pounds of furfural from one ton of corncobs, or approximately 6 per cent.

Furfural has an agreeable odor and boils at a temperature above 100 degrees C. Its boiling point is the same as that of turpentine. This makes furfural a much less dangerous substance than some of the solvents that are used in paint and varnish removers. It also obviates the necessity of weighting the solvent with wax, as it evaporates slowly enough to do its work thoroughly. Furthermore, it does not injure the surface underneath. When smeared over a surface it evaporates after a while, but it does not leave a sticky residue. This disadvantage may be removed by the addition of 20 per cent of solvent naphtha. By the addition of wood oil the viscosity of the furfural is increased.—Scientific American.

Black and Green Tea

The difference lies in the process of curing. All varieties of the plant can be made into either green or black tea, but some varieties are better suited for making one or the other. In the manufacture of green tea the freshly-picked young and tender leaves are subjected to live steam or heated air, or are placed in contact with a hot surface which destroys the oxidizing properties in the leaf. After rolling and drying, the cured product gives a green or greenish yellow infusion. In the manufacture of black tea, the oxidizing process is hastened by rolling, with the leaves being exposed to the air, and by allowing them to remain in contact with a hot surface.

INSURANCE ON CROPS IS LESS
IN BURLEIGH

Sharp Drop in Amount of State Hail Insurance Carried Is Shown Here

A marked decrease in the amount of state hail insurance carried by Burleigh county farmers is shown in the county abstract of hail insurance for this year, as compared to last year.

The increase of diversified farming, particularly corn raising; slight decrease in general acreage and the payment of losses on an 80 per cent basis last year, are among the reasons ascribed locally for the decrease.

A comparison of the figures of last year and this year shows 278,604 acres of land cropped in Burleigh county this season and 291,120 cropped last year, an acreage decrease of 12,516, regarded as very small in view of the campaign to cut grain acreage and turn more land to pasture for dairy cows and cattle.

The number of acres carrying the $7 an acre state hail insurance is but 156,269 this year as compared to 212,114 last year. The complete withdrawals this year were 129,526 acres as compared to 79,185 acres last year. The additional insurance of $3 per acre this year totals $12,796 as compared to $23,827 last year. There were 7,181 acres reinstated this year after having been withdrawn from the insurance.

HIKER, 74, IN CITY ON JAUNT

San Diego, California, to Washington, D. C. Route of Aged Man

Equipped with only a walking stick and a water bottle, Henry Stewart, aged 74, is walking from his home in San Diego, Cal., to Washington, D. C., arriving late yesterday in Bismarck, where he intends to stay for a few days. He left home on February 22, and has visited all the state capitals on his way.

Stewart, who says that he has walked 100,000 miles since 1910, has visited all the countries in Europe, and has been through Africa and Egypt. He has medals from a number of the countries he has visited, and other credentials for his claim to being the world long distance hiker.

In Washington he plans to interview President Coolidge, and to present claims for $100,000 for having walked 100,000 miles since 1910, which he says he did to advertise the San Diego exposition. The trip he is making is from "Cal. to Cal.," he says. He plans to be back on the coast for the opening of the World fair.

While in Bismarck Stewart intends to call on the Governor.

He's Oldest Salesman

George Joel, 92, of Rochester, N. Y., however, he is the oldest traveling salesman in the world. He came to America from England when he was 5, and in his early 20's started to work as a salesman. In the early days he traveled from town to town with his pack of samples on his back. He has only worked for three companies in his life and at present is a whip salesman.

2 STATES PUT
GASOLINE TAX
IN TREASURY

But two states, North Dakota and Georgia, do not place the funds derived from their gas tax on the roads in their state, according to a survey of the gas tax situation in the United States published in a recent edition of the "National Municipal Review." These two states, the magazine article points out, are violating the purpose of the tax which is, they say, "to supply funds for the construction and maintenance of public highways."

Several states give but half of the tax to the highways, the rest going to the general state treasury. In North Dakota the total amount goes to the general fund to be expended by the legislature as they may see fit, in direct opposition to the basic theory of the tax.

A campaign of national scope is now being waged, it is pointed out, to have the funds derived from the gas tax set aside to be used as they were originally designed to be used.

KIN TO CLAIM
SUICIDE IN N. D.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 23.—Potter, field will not claim the body of the man who hanged himself Saturday morning from the town viaduct as he has been identified by a cousin, William Garfee, of near Devils Lake, as Maurice Hall of Holt, Minnesota.

Hall was identified Saturday afternoon by Garfee, a workman on the Carl Rype farm near this city. The last time Garfee had seen Hall alive was a week ago Sunday morning. Hall and Garfee had been visiting their relatives at Holt for three weeks and returned to North Dakota and Devils Lake by car.

Garfee tried to persuade Hall to go out to the farm with him, but when Hall left Holt he was broke. A brother loaned him $10 and Hall had most of the money with him when Garfee left him Sunday morning. The money and pocket book disappeared during the week, for no money was found among the dead man's belongings.

No motive for Hall's suicide can be advanced by Willie Garfee. Hall was thirty-three years old.

WHEAT COMES BACK TODAY

New Bearish Reports From Canada Boost Price

Chicago, July 23, (By the A. P.)—Wheat quickly advanced in price today after a wavering start. The upturn was due chiefly to active buying, based on an announcement that a complete survey of crop conditions in Alberta indicated only 40,000,000 bushels yield this season as against 166,000,000 bushels last year. Other estimates suggested that the Canadian Northwest as a whole would produce less than half the 1923 total. Opening prices which ranged from one cent decline to one cent advance, with September $1.23 to $1.23 1/2 and December $1.25 1/2 to $1.26 1/2 were followed by gains all around.

Subsequently black rust reports from Manitoba brought about an expected further advance. The price records for the season were broken and upturns from the day's bottom figures amounted to eight cents. The close was wild, 6-8 to 7-14 cents net higher. September $1.30 to $1.30 1-8 and December $1.32 5-8 to $1.32 7-8.

NO BLACK RUST IS YET FOUND

Some Red Rust Appears in Fields in Vicinity

Black rust has not made its appearance in this section of the state, according to O. W. Roberts, weather observer. Mr. Roberts yesterday visited several fields near Mandan and found some red rust, but no black rust. Some red rust also has been seen in this county, but is not regarded as likely to do much damage. Reports that black rust had been found are said by Mr. Roberts to be erroneous.

Several weather stations today reported rain in the last 24 hours. The precipitation report follows: Bismarck .17; Devils Lake .16; Dickinson .32; Dunn Center .07; Langdon .07; Minot .02; Williston .01; Moorhead, Minnesota .06.

WORKER ON BRIDGE DIES

Body of Employee in Cass County Cut in Two

Fargo, July 23.—One Fargo man is dead and another is in a local hospital unconscious, the results of two accidents yesterday afternoon. The dead man is Ole Jacobson, foreman for the J. A. Jardine company bridge crew working near Page.

Carl Johnson, of the contracting firm of Meisner & Johnson, suffered a serious fracture to the base of his skull when he fell about 20 feet in the new Herbst building now under construction, hitting the floor with his head.

Jacobson was killed about 4 p. m., yesterday when a pile driver fell upon him crushing his head and literally cutting him in two from his right shoulder to his waist. He died almost instantly. E. F. Moore, county coroner, returned from Page last night and reported the death as accidental.

Jacobson, who was foreman of the bridge crew employed by the J. A. Jardine company of Fargo, was called to inspect a pile driver which would not function. The weight of the machine had been drawn up, but refused to drop. The foreman stood almost directly under the weight looking up at it, when it dropped hitting him on the head and right shoulder.

The body was taken to the Lindsey funeral parlors at Page and will be taken to this city today and will lie at the O. J. Hanson funeral home.

INSURANCE ON CROPS IS LESS IN BURLEIGH

Sharp Drop in Amount of State Hail Insurance Carried Is Shown Here

A marked decrease in the amount of state hail insurance carried by Burleigh county farmers is shown in the county abstract of hail insurance for this year, as compared to last year.

The increase of diversified farming, particularly corn raising; slight decrease in general acreage and the payment of losses on an 80 per cent basis last year, are among the reasons ascribed locally for the decrease.

A comparison of the figures of last year and this year shows 278,604 acres of land cropped in Burleigh county this season and 291,126 cropped last year, an acreage decrease of 12,522, regarded as very small in view of the campaign to cut grain acreage and turn more land to pasture for dairy cows and cattle.

The number of acres carrying the $7 an acre state hail insurance is but 156,259 this year as compared to 212,114 last year. The complete withdrawals this year were 129,526 acres as compared to 79,185 acres last year. The additional insurance of $3 per acre this year totals $12,796 as compared to $23,827 last year. There were 7,181 acres reinstated this year after having been withdrawn from the insurance.

HIKER, 74, IN CITY ON JAUNT

San Diego, California, to Washington, D. C. Route of Aged Man

Equipped with only a walking stick and a water bottle, Henry Stewart, aged 74, is walking from his home in San Diego, Cal., to Washington, D. C., arriving late yesterday in Bismarck, where he intends to stay for a few days. He left home on February 22, and has visited all the state capitals on his way.

Stewart, who says that he has walked 100,000 miles since 1910, has visited all the countries in Europe, and has been through Africa and Egypt. He has medals from a number of the countries he has visited, and other credentials for his claim to being the world long distance hiker.

In Washington he plans to interview President Coolidge, and to present claims for $100,000 for having walked 100,000 miles since 1910, which he says he did to advertise the San Diego exposition. The trip he is making is from "Cal. to Cal." he says. He plans to be back on the coast for the opening of the World fair.

While in Bismarck Stewart intends to call on the Governor.

GERMAN PARTY TAKES STAND

Demands Evacuation of the Ruhr by French

Berlin, July 23.—The German National Party of the Reichstag has adopted a resolution which it has sent to the government demanding that Germany shall not participate in the London inter-allied conference except on an equal footing with the allies.

The party also demands that the prisoners held by the French and Belgians be released and exiles be allowed to return to the occupied territory.

In addition the resolution insists on evacuation of the Ruhr, the restoration of German railroads and the recognition of authority of the German states, that Germany receive guarantees against further sanctions and that the period of occupation of the bridge-head be calculated from October, 1920.

The party declares it will oppose all proposed settlements which do not meet with its approval.

WHITE WOMAN SIKI'S BRIDE

Sengelese Pugilist Is Married in New York

New York, July 23.—Battling Siki, Sengelese pugilist, was married here today to Lillian Werner, white, of this city. The boxer's real name, Louise Fall, was signed to the marriage license.

The boxer gave his age as 23 years and his birthplace as St. Louis, Senegal, Africa. The white bride, who gave her age as 23 years, described herself as an artist. Siki also described himself as an "artist."

Siki stated on the license that he had never been married. Dispatches from Europe at the time the boxer was preparing to come to this country stated that he had a wife and family who had accompanied him from Africa.

DIVERSITY ON PROGRAM

Rotarians Hold Interesting Noon Luncheon Meeting

The Rotarian luncheon this noon enjoyed a snappy and diversified program. B. K. Skeels as chairman of the attendance committee explained a contest planned to increase attendance. J. L. Bell was lauded for his achievements of the week as editor of "The Buffalo Horn." C. L. Young told of his visit with the Rotary Club of Grand Forks and Dr. E. P. Quinn spoke briefly of his experiences at Fort Snelling.

B. K. Skeels doubled on the program by celebrating the birthday of Henry Murphy and L. H. Richmond presented R. M. Bergeson with an anniversary token.

Robert Birdell talked interestingly of "Life at the University." He gave a resume of student activities, athletic, scholastic, and social. Judge Nussle next spoke on "State Institutions" dwelling principally on the State University. As an early graduate his comparison of the past and the present day student body, faculty, and buildings gave an excellent demonstration of the complexities of modern life. The Judge emphasized the popular ignorance of what the public money goes for and the importance of knowledge along that line. He pointed out that the money expended at the State University and other state institutions and especially the manner of its expenditure would determine the next generation of citizens.

Oil Spring in 1629

The first reference to the discovery of petroleum in America is contained in a letter written in 1629 by Joseph de la Roche d'Albion, a French missionary to the Indians.

He had crossed the Niagara river and made his way westward through western New York into northern Pennsylvania, where he found a spring from which oil flowed.

This oil was highly esteemed by the Indians for medical uses, says the Detroit News. The letter of the priest was published in 1832 in Sagard's "Histoire de Canada."

HOARDED $400,000,000 IS DEAD-WEIGHT ON BUSINESS

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

HOARDING is as unlike true thrift as a pile of iron ore is unlike a powerful locomotive. The ore represents potential strength and power. But it must be put through certain processes of preparation and become ACTIVE before its usefulness is made available.

Hoarded wealth is a dead weight on business. Between the miser and the spendthrift there is little to choose when they are placed on the scales of moral and social valuation.

The hoarding processes grade upward from the real misers to those who for various reasons hide away a share of their earnings rather than place it where it will flow through the regular channels of business.

Some interesting and rather amazing figures were compiled recently in the United States Treasury Department. These figures reveal that the amount of money which may be termed as hoarded in this country amounts to $400,000,000. There are 8,000 persons who are definitely classed as misers with $44,000,000 hidden away in secret places.

Among our foreign population, a Treasury official estimates that some two million hoard $225,000,000 of their earnings in rural districts, especially where banking facilities are inadequate, there is much hoarding. This is shown by the fact that when a bank is started in a rural locality where no bank existed before, personal deposits made up largely from hoarded sums at once begin to make their appearance. About $125,000,000 it is officially estimated, is hoarded in rural communities.

One of the great benefits which come from thrift education lies in the fact that people are led to see that the more hoarding of money is not thrift.

Real thrift is the elimination of waste. And within this definition hoarding must be considered wasteful because the individual loses the richful income from his savings, and business in general loses the benefits that should come from these additions to the legitimate channels of trade and investment.

It is well to understand that when the saving of money is carried to the point of keeping it continually out of circulation such habits come very far from being within the rightful meaning of thrift.

NOT HIS DUTY TO GO AFTER TAXES, HE SAYS

County Treasurer J. A. Flow, commenting today on the discussion at Monday night's meeting of the citizens' commission regarding unpaid taxes, said he was not his duty to collect delinquent taxes.

"Delinquent personal property taxes are turned over to the sheriff on October 15 each year," he said. "Real estate taxes that have been sold on the second Tuesday in December go back to the county auditor or the county commissioners to look after final disposition."

Mr. Flow said that he received payment of taxes when due, but not delinquent taxes.

HOURS OF LABOR LAW INVOLVED

Judge Janowski in district court this morning heard a return on an order to show cause, issued in the case of Fred Bobb, restaurateur, charged with violating the hours of labor law for women waitresses. The order was to show cause why a fine of $100 and costs should not be ordered into effect. The court ordered this done, after the states attorney alleged violations of the law had continued. A stay of proceeding was granted by the court, on request of Mr. Bobb's lawyer, who will appeal to the supreme court, he said. Mr. Bobb met on a $200 appeal bond.

The action may result in a thorough test of the hours of labor law for women.

PARROT TALKED TOO MUCH

Polly, family parrot in the Simon Silverberg household at Baltimore, Md., became an important witness in Mrs. Silverberg's suit for separation from her husband. Mrs. Silverberg (shown above) had been away on a visit and, upon her return, found the parrot shrieking the name of "Cora"—at least, such is the allegation. Now Mrs. Silverberg's name happens to be Rose, and she became suspicious. She won her court action.

THEY RUN LAFOLLETTE'S CAMPAIGN

Communist

Corner Main and July 23.—Fight Bismarck, N. D., unchained by the Minnesota Labor, in an yesterday, repudiate the recent national Farmer-Labor convention at St. Paul and to endorse the candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette.

Along with condemnation of the St. Paul meeting went a defeat for William Mahoney, of St. Paul, its sponsor, who, under a suspension of rules was given a full half an hour to plead for passing up the matter without formal action.

Mahoney said such action would be "merely to crucify me, but there will be a resurrection."

Light Walls Save Gas Bills

London, Germany, July 23.—The sombre hued wallpapers so prevalent in Germany are giving way to lighter shades. The change is not due to artistic reasons, however, but to the education of the public to the fact that light toned walls save gas and electric bills.

The 24 HOUR MAN of Modern Business

Let us look at a three-ring circus and marvel. Here are literally hundreds of people, hundreds of animals, and more paraphernalia than you find in a small-sized factory—all on the move.

Here is a complete city, set up every day in a strange place—giving a parade and two performances—taken down, packed away, loaded on a train, moved to another city and set up again.

Any business can learn something about efficiency from a circus.

Take the "24-hour man" as one example.

The "24-hour man" goes one day ahead of the circus. He contracts for all the food for this army of performers. He arranges to have a local bakery deliver bread; he buys vegetables and meat; he buys tons of hay for the horses and elephants.

The "24-hour man" sees the city officials. He arranges for a license; he arranges for water, piped to "the lot," sometimes he arranges for electricity, he sees that "the lot" itself is clear and ready for occupancy the next day.

Then comes the circus. All it has to do is go to "the lot," set up, give its parade and its two performances.

If it were not for the "24-hour man" the circus itself would stand a fair chance of wasting its time and spending its energy running down and taking care of the details which one man handled so efficiently the day before.

Does Your Business Need a 24-Hour Man?

The "24-hour man" of business is printing.

Printing takes care of a thousand details which would otherwise fall upon a salesman.

Printing thus helps your salesman—whether they are in a retail store or traveling "on the road." It enables your salesman to perform as they are intended to perform—by bringing in sales.

Without printing, any salesman must waste time in explaining your policy—building confidence—explaining the merits of merchandise—removing obstacles to buying, from the purchaser's mind.

With printing, you can do these things for your salesman.

That's just one advantage of printing. Let us tell you more of them.

Distinctive Air

This frock of beige flat crepe achieves an air of distinction by its unique insert of open-work embroidery outlined with a row of ball buttons that attach by means of loops. The dress itself, you will notice, is a perfectly straight tube affair with a Jenny neck and very short sleeves. Detachable, but a part of the costume is the wide and very lengthy scarf of self material edged with the ball buttons. It is worn over a slip of the same color.

LARGE HATS RESTORED TO FAVOR FOR SUMMER WEAR

BY MARIAN HALE

NRA Service Writer

The large hat has staged a real comeback this summer. Just make a tour of the smartest roof gardens and restaurants and you will find the debutantes and dowagers alike basking under wide-brimmed models. Nine out of ten are of black millon or leghorn with a bow of velvet or satin ribbon that weighs it down on one side and gives the wearer a chance to peek out coyly from the other.

But there are novelties such as the ones photographed. There is the combination of straw and fur that Paris likes very much this summer that is most unusual.

Or the checkered model with the upturned brim that is bound to make the wearer look at least five years younger than she really is.

For festive occasions such as the wedding or garden party, there is the leghorn picture hat lined with pink tulle under the brim and ruffled and banded with it on the outer. And on one side fastened beneath a bunch of old-fashioned velvet ribbon. This hat is warranted to bring on the proposals.

AT THE MOVIES

AT THE CAPITOL

"On the Banks of the Wabash," which was inspired by Paul Dresser's famous song and which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, is a gripping story laid in a little town along the banks of the Wabash River in the very neighborhood where Dresser lived in his boyhood. It is a gripping heart-interest story with a tremendous climax which includes a remarkable flood and fire sequence essential to the plot.

"On the Banks of the Wabash" is played by an exceptionally fine cast. In the juvenile roles are found Madge Evans, James Morrison and Mary MacLaren. Mary Carr plays a mother role. Lumsden Hare is seen as an aspiring artist. Burr McIntosh portrays "Cap" Hammond, retired stern-wheeler captain.

THE ELTINGE Colleen Moore, supported by Sydney Chaplin, Phyllis Haver and Frank Mayo!

This is the unusual combination to be seen in "The Perfect Flapper," now showing at the Eltinge Theatre.

Sydney Chaplin is a brother of the famous Charlie and was seen in "Her Temporary Husband." Phyllis Haver is best known as a celebrated Mack Sennett bathing beauty, while Frank Mayo was for years starred in his own right.

News of Our Neighbors

MOFFIT

The Moffit Sunday school picnic which was held at Benz's grove, a few miles southeast of town, was a very enjoyable affair. The very nice rain which fell in this locality during the previous night, July 17, cut down the attendance considerably as folks expected to find "wet grounds." Another splendid rain fell visited this locality on the following night, July 18.

L. E. Heaton from near McKenzie was a business caller at Moffit during the past week.

Mr. Everett Porter and son Clare are shipping cattle out from Moffit this week.

An unfortunate accident was reported to have occurred at the farm home of Mr. Sam Mauck, southeast of Moffit, on last Thursday, July 17.

time of the small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Mauck, while playing on a hay stack, fell off and broke both wrists. It was also stated later in the day that a limb was also broken and probable internal injuries. It is hoped that this later report is exaggerated. The two broken wrists are serious enough injury and we hope the little one recovers fully and is none the worse for her mishap.

Mrs. Edward Adams, living on a farm northwest of Moffit, was shopping in town on Friday.

Mesdames Harry Nelson, Ella Porter, John Benz, Billy Carroll and A. Faust, were callers at the home of Mrs. Edward Pfaff, Friday afternoon, July 18.

Mrs. C. B. Porten was a passenger to Bismarck the latter part of the week. She was accompanied by her son, Calvin and small daughter Nettie Jean.

Mrs. John Lund and daughter were passengers to Bismarck July 18, returning the following day. Miss Lund expected to have a cast removed from her arm which was recently broken, but the doctor's did not find the arm knitting as rapidly as was expected. Another trip to the Capital City will be necessary later.

A record breaking crowd gathered at the farm home of Mrs. Fred Dutton in Emmons county, the occasion being the meeting of the grandmother's club. Fifty-three guests were present, not mentioning the children. Of course, the adults were not all grandmothers, but a goodly part of the crowd have a fair chance to be eligible to the club in the distant or near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Rhoades, who are visiting at the farm of Martin Peterson, southwest of Moffit were pleasant callers at Moffit recently.

The new house under construction on the Ellison Whitaker farm in Morton township, is advancing rapidly to completion.

Mr. Asa Werner, who left for California during the past week, has joined his brother Edward Werner in Calif., and expects to accept a position in a garage, which position was secured for him by his brother. Mr. E. Werner went to California about two years ago.

Moffit village is growing fast. A new shop is being fitted up on Main street under the caption of "Meat Market, M. Rippley, Prop."

Mrs. Elizabeth Miller and children are staying at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coder.

The next meeting of the Grandmother's club is to be held at the home of Mrs. Ella Porter, residing at Moffit, on July 31.

Mr. B. K. Skeels of Bismarck, was visiting in Moffit and surrounding country, in the interests of the DeLoe Light company, during the latter part of the past week.

Ball game at Braddock, July 20. Braddock vs. Moffit, score 7 to 5, favor of Braddock.

An ice cream social will be given at the Benz hall at Moffit, on July 25, by the Moffit Sunday school folks.

Mrs. B. F. Lane entertained a large gathering of homefolks, at a Sunday dinner on July 20, about 35 guests were present.

Left for a visit to Minneapolis, Mrs. Jason Hoover and son Roy.

Mr. and Mrs. George Parks and daughter Wanda, accompanied by Mr. Viggo Jensen and son motored to Bismarck Sunday, spending the day with relatives there.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Werner left Thursday for Minneapolis expecting to visit for some time with their daughter at Staples, Minn. Mrs. Werner has been in very poor health for some time and it is hoped that the visit will help her.

WASH IN SODA Waxed or oiled clothes should be washed in soda solution and rinsed thoroughly.

PAINTING WOODWORK Fill up holes in your woodwork with putty, plaster of paris or glue.

WHITENS LINEN Linen may be whitened by soaking in buttermilk for two or three days and then rinsing in cold water. If it can be dried on the grass in the sun the results are almost magical.

VELVET HATS Velvet hats are due to replace felts, according to authentic style information from Paris.

PRINT AND PLAID Printed and plaid chiffon dresses are replacing the heavier silks and crepes for summer frocks.

BLACK SATIN Black satin afternoon frocks frequently have white or black and white scarfs.

Distinctive Air

This frock of beige flat crepe achieves an air of distinction by its unique insert of open-work embroidery with a row of ball buttons that attach by means of loops. The dress, itself, you will notice, is a perfectly straight tube affair with a Jenny neck and very short sleeves. Detachable, but a part of the costume is the wide and very lengthy scarf of self material edged with the ball buttons. It is worn over a slip of the same color.

LARGE HATS RESTORED TO FAVOR FOR SUMMER WEAR

BY MARIAN HALE

NEA Service Writer

The large hat has staged a real comeback this summer. Just make a tour of the smartest roof gardens and restaurants and you will find the debutantes and dowagers alike basking under wide-brimmed models.

Nine out of ten are of black millan or leghorn with a bow of velvet or satin ribbon that weighs it down on one side and gives the wearer a chance to peek out coyly from the other.

But there are novelties such as the ones photographed. There is the combination of straw and fur that Paris likes very much this summer that is most unusual.

Or the checkerboard model with the upturned brim that is bound to make the wearer look at least five years younger than she really is.

For festive occasions such as the wedding or garden party, there is the leghorn picture hat lined with pink tulle and under the brim and ruffled and banded with it on the outer. And on one side fastened beneath a bunch of old-fashioned roses are streamers of blue velvet ribbon. This hat is warranted to bring on the proposals.

News of Our Neighbors

MOFFIT

The Moffit Sunday school picnic which was held at Benz's grove, a few miles southeast of town, was a very enjoyable affair. The very nice rain which fell in this locality during the previous night, July 17, cut down the attendance considerably as folks expected to find "wet grounds." Another splendid rain fall visited this locality on the following night, July 18.

L. E. Heaton from near McKenzie was a business caller at Moffit during the past week.

Mr. Everett Porter and son Clare are shipping cattle out from Moffit this week.

An unfortunate accident was reported to have occurred at the farm home of Mr. Sam Mauck, southeast of Moffit, on last Thursday, July 17. One of the small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Mauck, while playing on a hay stack, fell off and broke both wrists. It was also stated later in the day that a limb was also broken and probable internal injuries. It is hoped that this latter report is exaggerated. The two broken wrists are serious enough injury and we hope the little one recovers fully and is none the worse for her mishap.

Mrs. Edward Adams, living on a farm northwest of Moffit, was shopping in town on Friday.

Mesdames Harry Nelson, Ella Porter, John Benz, Billy Carroll and A. Faust, were callers at the home of Mrs. Edward Olson, Friday afternoon, July 18.

Mrs. C. B. Porten was a passenger to Bismarck the latter part of the week. She was accompanied by her son, Calvin and small daughter Nettie Jean.

Mrs. John Lund and daughter were passengers to Bismarck July 18, returning the following day. Miss Lund expected to have a cast removed from her arm which was recently broken, but the doctor's did not find the arm knitting as rapidly as was expected. Another trip to the Capital City will be necessary later.

A record breaking crowd gathered at the farm home of Mrs. Fred Dutton in Emmons county, the occasion being the wedding of their daughter.

Smart For Autumn

Here is the type of frock Paris says will be smarter for fall than the tailor. It has neat, simple lines but is not so bare of trimming as the models for spring were. The embroidered sections in the front panel do not detract from the utility of the frock but they do add to its charm. You will notice the wide pleat on the shoulder which gives plenty of freedom but no appearance of fullness and nothing to detract from the flat effect. Instead of a girdle we have an ornament with long fringe at each side.

PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE

The letter of the supervisor of the express traffic on the Northern Pacific Railroad, printed in The Tribune recently, is enlightening. It is concrete evidence of the progress that western North Dakota has been making despite the setbacks of poor grain crops. It is evidence of what may be accomplished in the future.

Mr. Bennett points out that more than 50 per cent of the cream shipping business on his railroad line in North Dakota originates in territory tributary to Bismarck. While Mr. Bennett does not give us figures to show how these shipments have increased from year to year, it is a matter of general knowledge that the increase has been steady and rapid. The reports of the state and federal departments having to do with statistics, and the increase of business in cream shipping companies, speak eloquently of the rise of this new industry in the western part of the state.

It was a trite statement a year or two ago that failure of the grain crop would after all prove of benefit to this section of the state, in that it would turn the thought and energy of all the people, those in the city as well as in the country, toward new methods of producing revenue. It is no criticism of any people to recall the old phrase that necessity is the mother of invention. It may be that the difficulties in grain production have not been an unmixed evil. If the result has been to set the western half of the state on a new road to success, the hardships have not been entirely in vain.

Nor is it likely that a bumper crop this year would swerve the western half of the state from its present trend to mixed farming—dairying, poultry, turkey raising, corn growing and livestock raising. A good grain crop would provide the means for hundreds to enter on the more balanced and safer system of agriculture, which may not be so profitable as a great grain crop but gives a steady income and a sense of security that makes for contentment.

No one in the western part of the state should lose sight of the necessity of preserving the victory that has been won against adversity. Every effort should be bent toward increasing the diversity of production in this section of the state. Perhaps nothing could encourage this more than a dairy and corn fair in Bismarck, and certainly no more convincing argument of the stability of western North Dakota could be offered to the prospective settler than an exhibition of this kind.

SPORTS

Old fogies, observing the tremendous crowds at baseball games, often comment that the country has gone crazy on sports.

The ancient Olympic games in Greece were held in a stadium that seated 40,000 spectators.

The Greeks, however, held their athletic meets only once every four years, in August. They wanted time to devote to improving their brains. Here we have baseball half the year and other sports the other half, with millions of people more interested in sports than anything else.

Americans do everything to excess.

DEAD

The death rate in cities is dropping faster than in the country. Uncle Sam's medical experts report.

A parallel fact is that the mortality rate among babies in New York City's "Lower East Side" is less than on the farm of New York state.

Medical science, health education and sanitation in cities—these are making cities healthier than the outdoors. Environment is not all. Most doctors and nurses look healthy. Yet they live in the midst of diseases. They simply take care of themselves.

SHRINKING

Our country has 3500 fewer miles of railroad tracks than it had eight years ago. Railroad building has been virtually at a standstill. Considerable unprofitable trackage has been abandoned.

Traffic experts are a bit worried over the situation. But you may live to see the tracks of some of our greatest rail systems covered with rust, displaced by airplanes. Chances are, though, we'll need both—same as we need the horse as well as the auto.

FLAG

Germany regaining her Argentine trade, says a headline. She had second place in ocean-carrying trade of this big South American country, before the war. England, former leader, still is. Germany and Italy are racing for second place. The American flag is lagging in the contest. As for Americans again are on the wane. Interest is in the interior, westward. Proof of this is the popularity of western stories in fiction and movies.

RUSTY

Rust will destroy 2500 million dollars worth of iron and steel this year in our country, estimates W. J. Overbeck, official of du Pont Company of Chicago.

The mineral resources of the world are being gradually destroyed by corrosive action of the air and by friction. As for the present, we'd never have boom business if everything weren't constantly wearing out and having to be replaced by the new.

INVADERS

Army worms by countless millions have been destroying crops lately in middle western states. In many places, they look like squirming carpets on the fields.

A battle for supremacy on this earth is on, between man and insects. We are rapidly conquering disease germs. Insects are conquering us. Boll weevil, for instance.

Detroit's champion rifle shot is a man of 83, so never read fine print in a bad light.

THE NEW SURGICAL FAD

Styles change constantly, for which humanity well may be thankful. For sometimes one extreme is far more satisfactory than another. Costumes, manners, methods and habits all yield to that law of mutability. Even ailments of the human system are not exempt. For example a brand new style in surgical operations is about to be offered to the suffering world. Henceforth, perhaps, if the prediction is borne out, a great many persons are going to lose their spleens.

Appendicitis, fashionable for years, is going out of style. The appendix is now de trop in polite circles, the spleen having crowded it out of the central position. An operation for removal of the spleen would be much more distinctive than one for elimination of the appendix. The appendicitis operation has become entirely too common, especially for the ultra fashionable.

Dr. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., is the modiste of the new vogue. He insists that chronically enlarged spleens simply will not do any longer, that they have got to come out. He thinks spleens soon will supplant appendices on the operating table, and he is right about that if fashion decrees it. It will require, however, a little study on the part of the patient before he can qualify as a spleen subject. He will have to know where his spleen is and how it acts when it is guilty of misbehavior. Otherwise both he and the surgeon would have to guess at it, and that would never do because one wishes to be certain about the latest models, even in operations.—Sioux City Journal.

ONE OF JAPAN'S GREAT MEN

The death of Prince Matsukata removes the last but one of Japan's "elder statesmen." Few men of his time have contributed more to the material prosperity and advancement of Japan, and rarely has an Oriental proved so capable of projecting his imagination half a world away in the search of ideas for the betterment of his fellow countrymen.

Matsukata was the father of Japanese finance, establishing a system of gold standard for the empire, serving as finance minister under Yamagata and inaugurating the system of foreign export exchange as a means to encourage Japan's exports and to absorb specie from abroad. Markets for Japanese products he sought steadily and, in the course of his activity towards this end, opened Japanese legations at New York, London and Lyons.

It is curious to reflect that this man of enlightenment was a member of the Satsuma feudal clan and, as a youth, fought under his feudal lord in the Japanese civil war of restoration. The course of time brought him all the public preferment a man could wish, ranging from special envoy to prime minister, his services finally being rewarded by elevation to the peerage.

The former Satsuma warrior has founded a family which now distinguishes itself in business, a fitting succession to the labor of Matsukata's life. His career spans, in a vivid manner, the story of modern Japan and not the least significant reflection is that the Japan we know today has come to pass in that relatively short time.—Detroit News.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BAXTON

The next day Cutie Cottontail woke up bright and early. That was really one reason he went to bed so early the night before.

And he got dressed in a hurry and slipped on his trousers his mother had mended for him. But he never thought of looking in his pockets. If he had, he might have saved himself a whole lot of trouble later.

He wanted to show the lucky brass ring he had got on the merry-go-round at Happy Go Lucky Park to all of his friends.

Then after that he was going to the bank and get his free ride, which the brass ring entitled him to.

You had to be pretty smart to get the brass ring. It stuck pretty hard and you had to pull like everything.

"I'll go and show Ben and Billy Bunsen first," said Cutie. "They'd never believe me if I didn't show it to them! I'll—hey, hello, here, what's this?" he cried, picking something up from the front porch. "Why it's my brass ring! How did it ever get out here? I must have dropped it when I was coming in last night. Lucky I found it before I got too far away."

So he put it into his pocket, not knowing that it was the very curious ring his mother had been looking for and which she had dropped when the postman came.

Away he went whistling to the Bunsen's house.

Ben and Billy were just up. "Lookie what I got!" cried Cutie, holding up the brass ring.

"Let's see! What is it? Where'd you get it? Gee! Aren't you lucky, though!" was what they said and Cutie was prouder than ever.

"Yes," he admitted. "It was pretty hard to get, but I got it just the same."

"Wish it was you," said Billy. "So do I," said Ben.

What more could any little boy want. Next he went to show Corby and Cobby Coon.

"Humph!" laughed fat Corby Coon, who was sort of a clown. "You haven't any rings on your tail like we have! That's a good way to get one."

FABLES ON HEALTH
KEEP SKIN HEALTHY

Keep the skin in good condition! That was another admonition of the Jones family doctor to Mrs. Jones at the time she was preparing for motherhood.

Proper attention to the bath is the best way to insure a good active skin. Warm tub baths each day are essential.

"But avoid soaking yourself in hot water," the doctor warned. "There are some persons who are accustomed to cold baths who suffer no ill effect from their continuance, but generally speaking they are inadvisable."

"The thing to remember is the warm bath. Some prefer the morning to the evening; the time is a matter of personal preference, the important thing is to take one each day."

"For there is nothing like a bath for stimulating skin health and this is a time when skin health is mighty important to a woman."

DEM OUTBREAKS HOLD THE "FUSS AND FURY" RECORD

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Paper

Washington, July 23.—Washington's I-remember-when brigade, which seeks to compare each new political circumstance with some previous similar situation, preferably to take disadvantage of the newest development, finds itself stumped in seeking an occasion when more "fuss and fury" was made over the presentation of the name of a candidate for president than that which attended Franklin Roosevelt's speech at New York, nominating Gov. Al Smith.

After much scratching of heads and comparing of recollections, it is agreed that the demonstration most nearly approaching those staged for McAdoo and Smith, at the recent Democratic battle royal, was the recorded presentation of Theodore Roosevelt's name in 1904.

Next to that, and running third to the recent records, was the hubbalooboo accompanying Bryan's second nomination at Kansas City in 1900, when the issue was "imperialism."

The custom of "demonstrations" at political conventions, party sagas agree, originated back in 1892. It was the Republicans who started it, although the Democrats have just carried it to the ultimate of frenzied absurdity.

At the Minneapolis convention of the G. O. P. in that year, a delegate from Colorado, in nominating James G. Blaine, by the sheer moving force of his oratory, touched off a demonstration that lasted for some 15 minutes. It was an unprecedented, unorganized, spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm without parallel in political history.

But even this first "demonstration" didn't nominate the man whom it honored. Blaine got the nomination.

The Bryan demonstration of 1900 gave evidence of attempts to improve on nature. Simple enthusiasm, certain leaders believed, was not enough. They would add to it, by artificial expedients. Which they did.

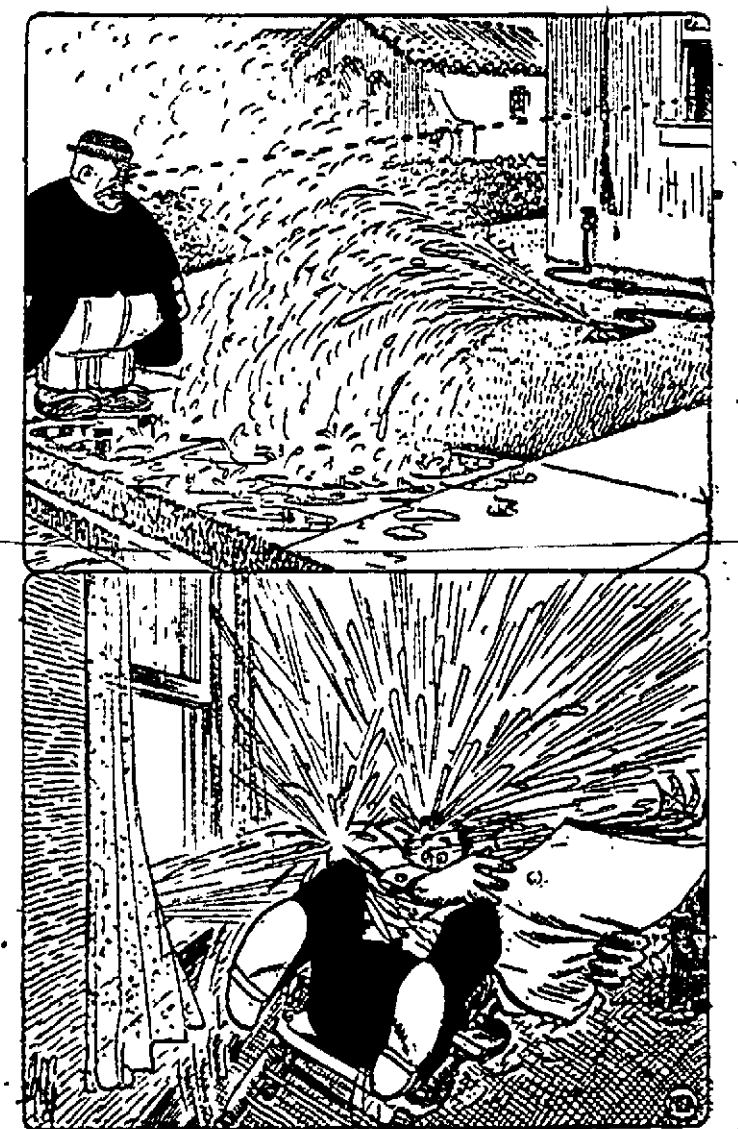

For the first 10 minutes the applause and jubilation was sincere and honest enough. After that it became a manufactured product, which was continued through another 15 minutes. This record of 25 minutes was acclaimed as proving the country's fervent opposition to the "imperialistic" program of the Republicans.

Again the Democrats had the big demonstration; the Republicans carried the election.

The demonstration bug, however, inoculated the G. O. P. proceedings at Chicago in 1904 and the Roosevelt backers set out definitely to outdo by at least five minutes the Democratic demonstration of 1900. It was put through on schedule, and maintained for exactly the desired 30 minutes. But it was palpably forced throughout at least half that time. Even the pugnacious personality of T. R. was unequal to the task of maintaining for that period a spontaneous crescendo of cheers and applause.

Political analysts, who have studied Democratic and Republican gatherings, say the Democrats are the more emotional and more easily stirred to genuine demonstrations. However, even the Democrats will admit that the record-breaking noise-fests which attended the McAdoo-Smith contest at New York—one hour for McAdoo, an hour and a quarter for Smith—were absolutely unimposed. They may mark the decline of the "demonstration" as an effective factor in presidential nominations.

MAN GROWING WINGS

Air bandits will be the next big problem in crime, bankers fear. And they have good reasons to fear. Gold and securities soon will be transferred from city to city by planes, to overcome the present difficulty of delay in shipment.

You picture a gang of bandits in armored planes pursuing a "flying gold ship" and attacking it with machine guns and bombs, bringing it down in the open country for looting.

Criminals are quick to adopt the new in science. Fortunately, science quickly finds counteracting protections, as the scales in the long run always swing against the law-breaker.

Fingerprints, used by all check signers, would cut forgery at least in half overnight. A good bet, overlooked.

Recall the first airplane you saw? Sounded like a threshing machine. Riding in it was about as safe as going over Niagara Falls in a barrel.

That wasn't long ago. Perfection comes fast in our age. A New Hampshire hotel starts a daily airplane service by which newspapers are speeded to its guests every day.

Makes you wonder, how long until you'll own your own plane.

Remarkable air stunt: Lieutenant Hutchison, landing his plane, flies barely clear of the ground and heads for two other planes standing idle 15 feet apart.

He can't get between them. No time to stop or turn. So he manipulates his plane, turning it half over like a bird with one wing down and one up. Passes safely through.

With control getting perfected like this, it shouldn't be long until a man fearing airplanes as "unsafe" will be laughed at like the backwoodsman afraid to ride in an auto.

Honeymoon trips by air from London to the Continent are becoming common. None killed, so far. The brides are said to be less nervous during the trip than grooms. Starting married life in an airplane! That's enough to make grandpa's jaw drop.

"Air lines" are being formed fast—routes and schedules regular, same as steam railroads. The next big one will be a flying service for mail and passengers, between New York and Central and South America. It's being organized.

How long until rival air lines will be competing for traffic, boasting faster service, better porters, fewer accidents? Highways of the future will be in the air.

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE FROM PAULA PERIER TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

"Is this Humboldt 3906?"

"Yes."

"Is Mr. John Alden Prescott there? U. S. Long Distance calling."

"This is Mr. Prescott's secretary talking, Mrs. Atherton. May I take the message?"

"Party wants to speak to him personally. When do you expect him in?"

"I'll get him."

"This is Mr. Prescott speaking. Put the party on the line."

"Go ahead."

"Hello. Hello. Mr. Prescott speaking."

"Jacques this is Paula."

"Oh, hello, Paula. Glad to hear your voice."

"Are you really, Jack? I did not tell Sidney that I was going to talk to you. I knew he would throw cold water on it."

"What do you want to say to me, dear?"

"You know very well. I want you to let me give that money to little Jack."

"But I can't do that, Paula. How it would look!"

"That's it. You men are always asking and being afraid of how it would look to other people. I see no reason why I should not give as much money as I please to my own child. Besides, it can be fixed so no one will know it, not even your sweet wife."

"But, Paula, don't you understand that Jack is not your child any more? He has been legally adopted by Leslie."

"Of course I know that, Jack, but I think you should not remind me of it; besides I am sure if Leslie knew about it she would take the money from me. I wish now that I had spoken to her instead of asking Syd to tell you. Men always mix things up with their silly vanity. I might have known that two men would have spoiled everything."

"But, Paula, I have money enough to support my own child."

"Of course, Jack, I know that, but don't you realize that I am making a great deal of money, more than I can spend, and it is the greatest pleasure you could give me; in fact, the only preparation you can make to me is to give me the satisfaction that I know that I too am working for my child."

"If you put it that way, Paula, I will have to consider it. Mind, I'm not saying that I am going to do it, but when old Syd comes back we will talk it over. I want to congratulate you, my dear, on your great success. I wonder how it would feel to have more money than one knew what to do with."

"The one thing that you feel most Jacques is that there are some things that money cannot buy. If you will let me buy with it a part of my child's education I will bless you as long as I live. I would like to send my love to Leslie, but she must not know that I have phoned you. I will send Sydney Carson right away to you and he can talk the matter over. Goodnight."

bloc with the democrats. This, of course, assumes that the third party will support its candidates until barred by the constitutional provision which limits the senate, in the election of vice-president to the "two highest numbers on the list."

If we are to assume that the democrats and the third party will eventually unite to elect a president, is there not another method they may adopt.

In law and under the original theory, the electors are free to choose. Said the Supreme Court in McPherson vs. Blacker, 146 U. S. 1: "Doubtless it was supposed that the electors would exercise a reasonable independence and fair judgment in the selection of the Chief Executive, but experience soon demonstrated that whether chosen by the legislature or by popular suffrage on general ticket or in districts, they were so chosen simply to register the will of the appointing power in respect of a particular candidate."

"In relation then to the independence of the electors the original expectation may be said to have been frustrated. Miller Const. Law, 149; Rawls, Const. 65; Story, Const. 1473; The Federalist, No. 68."

If the third party adherents are prepared to make Charles W. Bryan president by the circuitous route of creating a deadlock in the electoral college, in the house of representatives and having him elected by the senate; would it not be more reasonable to have him named by the electors in the first instance.

Yours Very Truly,
M. W. DUFFY.

The general trend of such articles being to the effect that the election of a president, will be thrown into the house of representatives, where neither party has a majority of the state delegations; resulting in the election by the senate, of the democratic nominee for vice-president, through a union of the LaFollette

TIGERS RISE TO TOP RUNG

Take Lead in the American League Race

Chicago, July 23.—Ty Cobb, veteran star and manager of the Detroit Tigers, today had the satisfaction of seeing the name of his club at the top of the American League standings. The Tigers took first place from the New York Yankees yesterday, winning 3 to 1. It was Detroit's eighth successive victory. Wells and Pennock were the opposing pitchers. Thurston held the Senators to five hits in the first game of a double header and Chicago won, 4 to 0, but in the second Washington got to Mangum, recently purchased from Minneapolis, and won, 4 to 1. St. Louis beat Philadelphia, 5 to 3, and Boston beat Cleveland, 4 to 3, after losing nine straight games.

In the Nationals, New York beat Cincinnati, 9 to 4, by hard hitting. Barnes allowed the Reds only three hits until the ninth. Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh, 4 to 1, in a five-inning game stopped by rain. Philadelphia came from behind to beat St. Louis, 5 to 2. The Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves divided a double header, Chicago losing the first 1 to 3 and taking the second 8 to 1.

The Cubs lost the services of O. Farrell, one of their star catchers, when a foul tip fractured his skull. Another casualty came when Cliff Heathcote sprang a charley horse in sliding into second base.

KENMARE MAN WILL COACH AT FARGO HIGH

Minot, July 23.—The signing of "Litz" Russness, athletic coach at the Fargo high school, as assistant football coach at the University of North Dakota, has resulted in the naming of Bob Lowe of Kenmare, well known in Minot, to fill the place vacated by Russness. Lowe graduated from North Dakota in 1916, and following two years in the army during the late war, he took over the job of coaching Kenmare high school. In 1922 he coached the Williston Athletics.

Lowe reentered the university last year as a vocational student, and as soon as he was named to coach the Fargo football team, he went to Illinois university to take the summer coaching course under Zupke.

Lowe was one of the best backfield men who ever wore a Flickertail uniform. He is the only North Dakota man to score against Minnesota, crossing the Gopher line for a touchdown in 1916, his last year in the team. He was a brilliant open field runner and a valuable defensive player, being credited by Coach Andy Gill as one of the smartest backs who had ever played for him.

In addition to making four letters in football, Lowe made three letters in basketball as a forward, and four letters in baseball as first baseman.

MACKS WEAK AT BAT

THEY'LL FACE EPINARD

BUSTED LEG MAY DIM COMBS' STAR

Huggins Calls Injured Yank Greatest Find Since Cobb Made Debut

If this young player recovers completely from his broken leg he will be another Ty Cobb, predicts Huggins of Yankees.

By Billy Evans
"He's the greatest outfielder that has broken into the major leagues since the entry of Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker or Eddie Roush."
That is the compliment Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees paid Earl Combs, who recently suffered a broken leg in a game at Cleveland.

Combs at present is in New York convalescing. There will be no way of telling the effect of the injury until Combs has put the leg to every test.
A broken bone in the leg is a very serious thing to a fast man in baseball. Combs is that type of player. Had he been developed as a sprinter he would have stepped close to 100 flat for the 100 yards.
"In all my career as a player and manager I have never enthused over any other recruit as I have over Combs," continued Huggins.

"He is one of those great players, real stars, who come only about every 25 years."
"Combs hasn't a single weakness. His arm isn't to be compared with Bob Meusel's, but is plenty good enough, far better than most major league outfielders."
"A natural batter, Combs hits any kind of pitching with equal ease. He times all kinds of pitching perfectly and hits the ball hard. If his injury doesn't affect his play, he is certain to take his place among the game's greatest hitters."
"Although a big fellow, Combs is winning streak of the Nationals, in which they captured 10 straight, also taking 17, out of 19 games before being stopped by New York in a double-header.

Observing closely the play of the Washington club, while it was staging its thrilling spurt, I was reminded of the play of the Chicago White Sox of 1906.

Washington, over a three-week stretch, got almost perfect pitching. That's a necessary factor in a winning streak.

The defense of the infield was simply marvelous. While the club did no great slugging it seemed to always have the necessary punch. The timely hit came when most desired. Never before in the history of an American League race has Washington been on top as late as July 4th.

In a majority of cases the club leading a major league race at the half-way mark has been a pennant winner.

Fans are wondering if the Washington club is going to follow precedent.

New York, July 23.—Louis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight called on Tex Rickard yesterday and signed final contracts for his match with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight. The contract stipulated that Firpo could not fight for any other promoter before meeting Wills.

No definite date for the match has been decided on by Rickard, but the promoter said he would make a decision today. The match will be held some time after August 30, he intimated.

Swimmers who try to frighten beach citizens by staying under water will offend no one by failing to come up.

Swimmers who can't swim will gain nothing by going out in water over their heads. There is enough rubbish at bottom of lake without adding to it.

Swimmers who wear gaudy jewelry on all occasions will find heavy iron chains attached to neck both fashionable and appropriate.

Swimmers who dive from lofty heights should always pick out shallow places. In this way science may find out what really happens when irresistible force meets immovable object.

Swimmers who play practical jokes on lifeguards by screaming for help never be ignored. If lifeguard hasn't a gun handy he should throw a 16-pound hammer, respecting all A. A. U. regulations, of course.

Swimmers of simple sex who spend their time on beach getting cost of tan should remember that it takes more than one garment to make full suit of clothes.

Swimmers of simp sex who go to beach to get sweet young things in one-piece should know this practice is highly offensive. (Especially to sweet young things whom you fail to ogie.)

Swimmers who use beach for dining table should at least be thoughtful enough to break pickle bottles into sharp-pointed fragments and arrange them on sand in neat decorative designs. A naive pleasure might be worked out in letters to say, "Walk on me and be a little cut up!"

Swimmers who imagine beach was made for baseball games, horseshoe pitching, tournaments, community picnics and debris-scattering contests are correct on all ballots.

Swimmers who go to beach for simple purpose of swimming and enjoying themselves in quiet manner should have heads examined.

The Man Whom the Years Forgot

He ran a successful business 20 years ago.

He had built up this business by hard personal effort.

Those who dealt with him knew that he could be relied upon, and anything which he sold was well worth the money.

And he had a fine group of customers. But customers change. Some of them die. Some go away. Some get restless and turn to competitors.

So it was with his customers. And not enough new ones came to take their place.

This man worked harder. He studied his products. He kept them up to date. In many ways he was the best posted man in his line of business.

Except for one thing—and on that one thing his competitors passed him. He did not keep in touch with old customers and attract new ones with sufficient energy.

He believed the old "mouse trap" saying, that people would beat a path to his door.

But competitors set up along the beaten path, and the customers were diverted.

What this man forgot was printing—and so the years forgot him.

He forgot to study the progress made in merchandising. He failed to see or find out the methods used by others in his same line of business, who were continually in communication with his customers, telling them the advantages of other merchandise, building confidence in other business institutions, winning away the people who had made this one business successful 20 years ago.

This is not the story of any one business. It is the story of scores of businesses, once successful, but today disappeared or disappearing from the field.

Don't let anyone forget your business. Keep in touch with your present market, and open a larger and larger market by using printing. We'll gladly show you examples of how many others are doing it. Call on us.

The Club of One-eyed Men

BEGIN HERE TODAY
John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, whose war wounds left him unfit for manual labor, returns hungry to his shabby lodging-house.

His landlady confronts him with a demand for the week's rent—one dollar. Being a gentleman born, Ainsley is humiliated at being unable to pay her on the instant. He asks her for an hour of grace. He decides to pawn an ivory miniature of his mother—the last of his possessions—in order to wipe away the debt and to get food for himself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

I saw myself, before I had opportunity to prove those undeveloped gifts, entering the French hospital service at the outbreak of the great war. I saw myself, later, transferring to the army, which later decorated me for valor. And then I saw the months that followed the war. Wounded in the last battle before the Armistice, I was discharged, as cured, six months later. Illness developed, and the last of my father's estate went to pay my hospital bills. I saw myself seeking work. I remembered the sudden horror that swept over me when I discovered that I was incompetent. I was a dilettante and the world refused to pay the amateur. I knew no trade, no profession. The only thing that I could do better than most people was the performance of certain tricks in sleight-of-hand. That was because few people practiced parlor magic.

I had in me a streak of stubbornness, that I called pride, that forbade me to trade upon my father's friendships. Like all youths who have been brought up with the idea that there will always be enough money available for their wants, I was conceited. I thought that success was an easy matter. I will not recount all the visions that passed before me as I looked at the miniature. Suffice it, that with times hard, I got no work. And when finally I had swallowed my pride and was willing to work as a common manual laborer, illness and privation had sapped my strength. I had moved from the best hotel in New York to a shabby rooming-house as the city held. And now my landlady threatened me with eviction.

Well, I could at least assure myself another week of shelter. After that—I refused to contemplate what would follow after the proceeds of my transaction with the pawnbroker were gone. I had not eaten for forty-eight hours. Before that I had eaten scantily, not more than once a day for six months. As a sandwich man, as an errand man when I could get a job, as guardian of motorcars, I had managed to pick up enough added to the results of frequent trips to the pawnshop to pay my small rental, and buy myself an occasional meal. But for the last two days I had earned nothing. And I was too proud to beg. Today I was starving.

I recognized that fact at last. Starvation! That, unless I yielded to the impulse of self-destruction, was my inevitable end. The battle was over, even though I might postpone surrender for a few hours longer. I born and bred in luxury, educated in the best university in America, a member of the finest society, I would die in black poverty. And probably the only person to mourn would be little Peter Gannon, the landlady's son, whom I had frequently amused with tricks ofleger-demain.

At least, though, I would die owing nothing. So I rose, putting the miniature in my pocket, and unsteadily descended the stairs to the street. I walked uptown to Washington Square, then crossed to Sixth Avenue. The little gentleman with hard black eyes, with whom I had had so many little transactions in the past, looked up as he bell on the door jangled at my entrance. It was an unflattering establishment that he ran. I never was compelled to meet curious eyes. But this evening he was engaged. He leaned across the counter whispering to a client who also looked up at my arrival. He looked away again swiftly, but not before I had time to gain an impression of shrewd eye, a rat-trap mouth, diamond-studded stud, a rich fur collar and a general atmosphere of money. I wondered vaguely why one so apparently prosperous should be dickering with a pawnbroker.

As I waited for my friend Weinberg to finish with the other man and attend to me, I somehow seemed to sense that whatever had been the subject of their conversation before my entrance, their talk now concerned me. The fur-collared gentleman glanced over his shoulder at me, not once but two or three times, and seemed to be putting questions to the pawnbroker.

Then Weinberg's visitor, turning his collar up so that his flashy shirt-stud was hidden, nodded abruptly to the proprietor and walked out of the shop. His hard eyes searched my face as he passed. However, he did not pause, and I promptly forgot him under stress of my negotiations with Weinberg.

I had done too much business with the pawnbroker for him to believe that there was any remote chance of my redeeming the goods which I pledged with him. I had every reason to believe that he took advantage of my property; yet I was too proud to open negotiations elsewhere. I did not haggle. I asked for ten dollars; the ivory alone was worth more than that, I believed; the silver frame in which the portrait was set must also have been worth at least ten dollars. Intrinsically, the thing, as a work of art, was worth hundreds of dollars. He was priceless. But the need of Mrs. Gannon was beyond anything else.

I took the five dollars that Weinberg offered and went out.

The midwinter air had grown chillier with the later hours. I shuddered as I stepped from the close atmosphere of the pawnshop upon the sidewalk.

I had promised Mrs. Gannon her money within an hour. I could keep my promise and still have time to forepay her, in which to satisfy my anguished stomach. I walked up Sixth Avenue toward a mean little restaurant where I could dine cheaply.

I was as near to an animal as it is possible for man to be. My whole being was concentrated on the effort to conserve my energies so that I would not collapse before reaching the restaurant. So, when a man laid a hand on my shoulder, halting my feeble progress, I turned on him with a snarl. I was at the door of the place where I planned to satisfy my hunger, and a delay maddened me.

"Let go!" I cried.

I recognized my gentleman of the fur collar at once. He stepped slightly back, then smiled ingratiatingly. "Take it easy son," he said. "I want to talk to you."

I shook my head; the effort of speech was too much; I moved again toward the restaurant door. He tapped me once more.

"Wait, son," he commanded. "You want to be careful; you might kill yourself over-eating. Come along with me, and I'll fix you up."

It was bad enough that Mrs. Gannon and the pawnbroker should know my abject poverty; it was shameful enough that I myself should know of my starvation; but it was worse that a man whom I had never seen, until twenty minutes ago, should accost me thus and venture impudent soliloquy. For no matter how kindly he might have meant it, I considered it an unwarranted intrusion into affairs strictly my own. Moreover, he had struck at more than my pride; he was interfering with the gratification of my appetite. As I have said, I had become animal-like. Reason had departed from me; I was governed by my belly, not by my mind. So like any animal balked of his food, I struck at him.

Had I not known how weak privation had made me, I would have landed at then. But he avoided my blow with ease. Exhausted by my effort, I pitched forward and would have fallen to the ground had he not caught me. The next few minutes were blurred. I dimly saw him signal the driver of a closed motorcar. I felt myself being assisted into the machine. I made no effort to resist. I think I must have fallen into a stupor for the next thing that I remembered I found myself sitting in a huge armchair. Some one was holding a glass to my lips, and I was drinking greedily of a hot soup. A few spoonfuls, and I have revived me. I sat up, pushed the spoon away and reached for the bowl from which the fur-collared gentleman—had I not dined his overcoat now was feeding me. He did not resist; I lifted the bowl to my mouth. It revived me, yet merely sharpened my craving for solid food.

My benefactor—at the moment I considered him such a friend. There was neither wrath nor kindness possible to those thin lips, but there was a certain black friendliness.

"Feel better?" he asked.

He knew my condition and I did not pretend to hide it.

He smiled again. "Wait a minute; let that soup get settled; then we'll see what you can do to a chop."

I tried to return his smile. "I'll do more things to it than you can guess," I told him.

He glanced over his shoulder at the opened door leading to the next room. He called a question, and a manservant, correctly dressed, appeared. He announced that dinner was served.

My host looked at me. "Can you make it?" he asked.

"Watch me," I replied.

RODE WITH DAVIS

John W. Davis used to canter over the country roads about Clarkburg, W. Va., with Lafayette Blake, veteran horseman, shown here, at the age of 84. It was Blake who largely inspired the love for horses in the Democratic nominee for president.

I rose unsteadily and walked with him into the dining-room. The soup had helped me mentally as well as physically. My mind felt clarified; I was able to exercise a self-control that had been lacking in me. I did not heed his warning that I must eat sparingly. But after his warning he tried to put me at my ease. I was surprised that the owner of such a face could possess so much tact. And as I ate, I tried to take stock of my host and his surroundings. (Continued in Our Next Issue)

Two Mayors Run Flint's Affairs

ABOVE—DAVID R. CUTHBERTSON. BELOW—JUDSON TRANSUE.

By NEA Service
Flint, Mich., July 23.—This is a city with two mayors.

And both are trying to run its affairs.

David R. Cuthbertson, recalled at a special election July 15, refuses to abdicate the mayor's office to Judson Transue, elected, with the aid of the Ku Klux Klan, to serve out the unexpired term of eight months.

With Cuthbertson still holding down the mayor's easy chair and still riding in the mayor's big limousine, Transue, duly sworn in, is walking to work and conducting the city's official business from the city clerk's office.

Betty Stridman, official secretary to the mayor, is having the busiest time of her career.

When anybody drops around to see the mayor, she is compelled to ask, "Which mayor?"

Transue, immediately after being sworn in, went to the mayor's sanctum to take charge. Cuthbertson, however, still sat in the big easy chair at the mahogany desk. And he refused to budge a foot.

He asked Transue if he personally would undertake the putting out job. Transue replied he might, if it wasn't for the fact that he was suffering from acute rheumatism.

"You couldn't put me out, anyway," retorted the hunky Cuthbertson, once a lumberjack.

"Don't be too sure about that," replied his rival. "I used to be a pretty good boxer."

Cuthbertson was swept into the mayor's office in April, 1923, largely through the women's help. But soon after he took up the reins recall rumblings began to be heard.

They materialized this spring. And after the recall had carried, Cuthbertson became a candidate to succeed himself. He received 10,034 votes against 11,482 polled by Transue.

Cuthbertson, however, contends there were irregularities in the election. In one precinct, more votes were cast than there were voters, he insists.

And he'll stay in office, he declares, until he is "thrown out."

Then Weinberg's visitor, turning his collar up so that his flashy shirt-stud was hidden, nodded abruptly to the proprietor and walked out of the shop. His hard eyes searched my face as he passed. However, he did not pause, and I promptly forgot him under stress of my negotiations with Weinberg.

I had done too much business with the pawnbroker for him to believe that there was any remote chance of my redeeming the goods which I pledged with him. I had every reason to believe that he took advantage of my poverty; yet I was too proud to open negotiations elsewhere.

I did not haggle. I asked for ten dollars; the ivory alone was worth more than that, I believed; the silver frame in which the portrait was set must also have been worth at least ten dollars. Intrinsically, the thing, as a work of art, was worth hundreds. Sentimentally, it was priceless. But the need of Mrs. Gannon was beyond anything else.

I took the five dollars that Weinberg offered and went out.

The midwinter air had grown chillier with the later hours. I shuddered as I stepped from the close atmosphere of the pawnshop upon the sidewalk.

I had promised Mrs. Gannon her money within an hour. I could keep my promise. But still I have time before paying her, in which to satisfy my anguished stomach. I walked up Sixth Avenue toward a mean little restaurant where I could dine cheaply.

I was as near to an animal as it is possible for man to be. My whole being was concentrated on the effort to conserve my energies so that I would not collapse before reaching the restaurant. So, when a man laid a hand on my shoulder, halting my feeble progress, I turned on him with a snarl. I was at the door of the place where I planned to satisfy my hunger, and a delay maddened me.

"Let go!" I cried.

I recognized my gentleman of the fur collar at once. He stepped slightly back, then smiled ingratiatingly. "Take it easy son," he said. "I want to talk to you."

I shook my head; the effort of speech was too much; I moved again toward the restaurant door. He stopped once more, however. "Wait, son," he commanded. "You want to be careful; you might kill yourself overeating. Come along with me, and I'll fix you up."

It was bad enough that Mrs. Gannon and the pawnbroker should know my abject poverty; it was shameful enough that I myself should know of my starvation; but it was worse that a man whom I had never seen, until twenty minutes ago, should accost me thus and venture impertinent solicitude. For no matter how kindly he may have meant it, I considered it an unwarranted intrusion into affairs strictly my own. Moreover, he had struck at more than my pride; he was interfering with the gratification of my appetite. As I have said, I had become animal-like. Reason had departed from me; I was governed by my belly, not by my mind. So like any animal balked of his food, I struck at him.

Had I not known how weak privation had made me, I would have learned it then. For he avoided my blow with ease. Exhausted by my effort, I pitched forward and would have fallen to the ground had he not caught me. The next few minutes were blurred. I dimly saw him signal the driver of a closed motorcar. I felt myself being assisted into the machine; I made no effort to resist.

I think I must have fallen into a stupor, for the next thing that I remembered I found myself sitting in a huge armchair. Some one was holding a spoon to my lips, and I was drinking greedily of a hot soup.

A few spoonfuls must have revived me. I sat up, pushed the spoon away and reached for the bowl from which the fur-collared gentleman had doffed his overcoat now—was feeding me. He did not resist and I lifted the bowl to my mouth. It revived me, yet merely sharpened my craving for solid food.

My benefactor—at the moment I considered him such—smiled. There was neither mirth nor kindness possible to those thin lips, but there was a certain bleak friendliness.

"Feel better?" he asked.

He knew my condition and I did not pretend to hide it.

He smiled again. "Wait a minute; let that soup get settled; then we'll see what you can do to a chop."

I tried to return his smile. "I'll do my best," I told him.

He glanced over his shoulder at the opened door leading to the next room. We called a question, and a man-servant, correctly dressed, appeared. He announced that dinner was served.

My host looked at me. "Can you make it?" he asked.

"Watch me," I replied.

I rose unsteadily and walked with him into the dining-room. The soup had helped me mentally as well as physically. My mind felt clarified; I was able to exercise a self-control that had been lacking in me. I did not heed his warning that I must eat sparingly. But after his warning he tried to put me at my ease. I was surprised that the owner of such a face could possess so much tact. And as I ate, I tried to take stock of my host and his surroundings. (Continued in Our Next Issue)

TIGERS RISE TO TOP RUNG

Take Lead in the American League Race

Chicago, July 21. Ty Cobb, veteran first and manager of the Detroit Tigers, today had the satisfaction of seeing the name of his club at the top of the American League standings. The Tigers took first place from the New York Yankees yesterday, winning 4 to 1. It was Detroit's eighth successive victory. Wells and Parnham were the opposing pitchers. Thurston led the Senators to five hits in the first game of a double header and Chicago won, 1 to 0, but in the second Washington got the victory, 2 to 0. In the third game, the Tigers, recently purchased from Minneapolis, and won, 4 to 1. St. Louis beat Philadelphia, 5 to 3, and Boston beat Cleveland, 5 to 3, after a long battle.

In the Nationals, New York beat Cincinnati, 9 to 1, by hard hitting. Barnes allowed the Reds only three hits until the ninth. Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh, 4 to 1, in a five inning game stopped by rain. Philadelphia came from behind to beat St. Louis, 5 to 2. The Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves played a double header, Chicago losing the first 1 to 3 and taking the second 8 to 1.

The Cubs lost the services of O. Farrell, one of their star catchers, when a foul tip fractured his skull. Another casualty came when Cliff Heathcote sprang a charity horse in sliding into second base.

KENMARE MAN WILL COACH AT FARGO HIGH

Minot, July 23. The signing of "Litz" Russness, athletic coach at the Fargo high school, as assistant football coach at the University of North Dakota has resulted in the naming of Bob Lowe of Kenmare, well known in Minot, to fill the place vacated by Russness. Lowe graduated from North Dakota in 1916, and following two years in the army during the late war, he took over the job of coaching Kenmare high school. In 1922 he coached the Williston Athletics.

Lowe reentered the university last year as a vocational student, and as soon as he was named to coach the Fargo football team, he went to Lincoln university to take the summer coaching course under Zupke.

Lowe was one of the best backfield men who ever wore a Flickertail uniform. He is the only North Dakota man to score against Minnesota, crossing the Gopher line for a touchdown in 1916. In last year's team, he was a brilliant open field runner and a valuable defensive player, being credited by Coach Andy Gill as one of the smartest backs who had ever played for him.

In addition to making four letters in football, Lowe made three letters in basketball as a forward, and four letters in baseball as first baseman.

HACKS WEAK AT BAT

The Athletics are the weakest hitting team in the majors. That's why they are last. Strand and Bishop have failed to live up to expectations at the bat.

BUSTED LEG MAY DIM COMBS' STAR

Huggins Calls Injured Yank Greatest Find Since Cobb Made Debut

EARL COMBS

If this young player recovers completely from his broken leg he will be another Ty Cobb, predicts Huggins of Yanks.

By Billy Evans
"He's the greatest outfielder that has broken into the major leagues since the entry of Ty Cobb," this speaker of Eddie Roush.

That is the compliment Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees paid Earl Combs, who recently suffered a broken leg in a game at Cleveland.

Combs at present is in New York convalescing. There will be no way of telling the effect of the injury until Combs has put the leg to every test.

A broken bone in the leg is a very serious thing, but a fast runner in base.

Had he been developed as a sprinter, he would have topped close to 10 flat for the two miles.

"I'll all my career as a player and manager I have never enthused over any other recruit as I have over Combs," continued Huggins.

Great Stars Are Rare
"He is one of the great players, real stars, who come along about every 25 years."

"Combs hasn't a single weakness. He isn't soft to be compared with Bob Newhall, but is plenty good enough, as better than most major league outfielders."

"A natural batter, Combs hits any kind of pitching with equal ease. He times all kinds of pitching perfectly and hits the ball hard. If he doesn't affect his play, he is certain to take his place among the game's greatest batters."

"Although a big fellow, Combs is unusually fast. He can step down to first as quickly as the diminutive Whitley Witt, one of the fastest men going to first in the American League.

Has The Winning Spirit
"Once he gets on, Combs uses his speed to his great advantage as in reaching first. He is able to get a long lead, senses the break and is a fine man at hitting the dirt. His slide is most deceptive."

"His fielding is on a par with his batting and speed. He gives every promise of being another Ty Cobb in the field."

"A fine disposition, a great competitive spirit, plus wonderful natural ability, made Combs stand out as a second Ty Cobb," this speaker and a true note of the great outfielders combined.

"I am worried about his broken leg. Few fast men ever come back as good as ever. The late Ray Chapman of Cleveland was one of the few exceptions."

All of which makes it apparent that Earl Combs, in his first year as a big leaguer, has most favorably impressed his manager, Miller Huggins.

Eight years later the Boston Braves, a rank outsider in the race for the National League pennant, captured the honor.

Going nowhere in the middle of the season, the team suddenly started to play as if inspired, put over several big winning streaks and surprised the baseball world by finishing out in front.

Those winning streaks made for confidence. The Club began to believe that it was unbeatable. That spirit was carried in to the world series. The Braves defeated the Athletics in four straight games.

The victory of the Braves over the mighty Athletics was at big an upset as the overthrow of the Chicago Cubs in 1906 by the White Sox.

Sport enthusiasts who play hunches are wondering if the recent sensational spurt of the Washington club will work out as did the rush of the White Sox and Braves, the winning of a pennant.

During the sensational run of victory by the White Sox in 1906, I officiated in a number of the games that featured the winning streak.

Remarkable pitching, in which Pa. Walch was the outstanding star, played a prominent part in the club's success. Added to the fine pitching was a good defense.

"The 'Hitless Wonders' seldom made many runs, but they didn't need them with such great pitching. It so happened that I was the umpire during the recent sensational winning streak of the Nationals, in which they captured 10 straight, also taking 17, out of 19 games before being stopped by New York in a double-header.

Observing closely the play of the Washington club, while it was staging its thrilling spurt, I was reminded of the play of the Chicago White Sox of 1906.

Washington, over a three-week stretch, got almost perfect pitching. That's a necessary factor in a winning streak.

The defense of the infield was simply marvelous. While the club did no great slugging it seemed to always have the necessary punch. The timely hit came when most desired.

Never before in the history of an American League race has Washington been on top as late as July 4th.

In a majority of cases the club leading a major league race at the half-way mark has been a pennant winner.

SWIMMING HINTS
Swimmers who try to frighten beach citizens by staying under water will offend no one by failing to come up.

Swimmers who can't swim will gain nothing by going out in water over their heads. There is enough rubbish at bottom of lake without adding to it.

Swimmers who wear gaudy jewelry on all occasions will find heavy iron anchors attached to neck both fashionable and appropriate.

Swimmers who dive from lofty heights should always pick out shallow places. In this way science may soon find out what really happens when irresistible force meets immovable object.

Swimmers who play practical jokes on lifeguards by screaming for help should never be ignored. If lifeguard hasn't a gun handy he should throw a 16-pound hammer, respecting all A. A. U. regulations, of course.

Swimmers of simple sex who spend their time on beach getting coat of tan should remember that it takes more than one garment to make full suit of clothes.

Swimmers of simp sex who go to beach to ogle sweet young things in one-piece should know this practice is highly offensive. (Especially to sweet young things whom you fail to ogle.)

Swimmers who use beach for dining table should at least be thoughtful enough to break pickle bottles into sharp-pointed fragments and arrange them on sand in decorative designs. A naive passerby might be worked out in letters cut "Walk on me and be a little cut up."

Swimmers who imagine beach was made for baseball games, horseshoe pitching tournaments, community picnics and debris-scattering contests are correct on all ballots.

Swimmers who go to beach for simple purpose of swimming and enjoying themselves in quiet manner should have heads examined.

The Man Whom the Years Forgot

He ran a successful business 20 years ago.

He had built up this business by hard personal effort.

Those who dealt with him knew that he could be relied upon, and anything which he sold was well worth the money.

And he had a fine group of customers. But customers change. Some of them die. Some go away. Some get restless and turn to competitors.

So it was with his customers. And not enough new ones came to take their place.

This man worked harder. He studied his products. He kept them up to date. In many ways he was the best posted man in his line of business.

Except for one thing—and on that one thing his competitors passed him. He did not keep in touch with old customers and attract new ones with sufficient energy.

He believed the old "mouse trap" saying, that people would beat a path to his door.

But competitors set up along the beaten path, and the customers were diverted.

What this man forgot was printing—and so the years forgot him.

He forgot to study the progress made in merchandising. He failed to see or find out the methods used by others in his same line of business, who were continually in communication with his customers, telling them the advantages of other merchandise, building confidence in other business institutions, winning away the people who had made this one business successful 20 years ago.

This is not the story of any one business. It is the story of scores of businesses, once successful, but today disappeared or disappearing from the field.

Don't let anyone forget your business. Keep in touch with your present market, and open a larger and larger market by using printing. We'll gladly show you examples of how many others are doing it. Call on us.

U. S. BANKER IS OPTIMISTIC ON ALLIED PARLEY

Predicts That Dawes Plan Will Be Given a Chance to Solve Economic Ills

POINTS OUT DIFFICULTY

Agreement on Guarantees For Loan and Penalties For Default Necessary

London, July 23. (By the A. P.)—The inter-allied conference will undoubtedly be successful and the Dawes plan will be given its chance to solve Europe's economic ills despite differences between bankers and conference delegates over guarantees for the forty million pound loan to Germany, a leading American financier today told the American Associated Press before sailing home after being in close touch with the conference for several days.

This authority, who has followed the Dawes plan since its inception, declared there was no question among bankers regarding the existence of guarantees which will insure the comparatively small sum regarded for the service of the loan.

The problem is, he added, to reduce the potential guarantee to definite form which will stand as a solid basis of credit.

It will be the conference's task during the next few days to put into writing and reach a complete agreement on some plan of action and defaults as that proposed by American Ambassador Kellogg yesterday.

It is stated. The American financier was not certain that the Kellogg proposal would prove satisfactory to all of the allies but he said it would be a basis for the conference to work on and from it the final agreement on guarantees would be developed.

The financier characterized the differences which have been delaying the conference as trivial and said there was not the slightest possibility of the allied delegations leaving London without accomplishing their purpose, namely, that of making the Dawes scheme effective.

A. G. DIVET TO FILE ARGUMENT IN BANK CASE

The supreme court today has under consideration the questions involved in the case in which application was made for review of the decision of Secretary of State Thomas Hall that petitioners asking for a vote on a constitutional amendment on a $6,000,000 bond issue to aid depositors of closed banks, and rewriting the Guaranty Fund law, were insufficient.

A decision is not expected for several days. Following the arguments before the court yesterday by a vote on Langer and John Thomas, first assistant attorney general, the court granted a request of A. G. Divet, Fargo attorney, to file a written argument he said was presented on behalf of several taxpayers, and this is to be filed within three days.

TEA SERVICE OF NAPOLEON ON EXHIBIT

Chicago, July 23.—Napoleon Bonaparte's silver gilt tea service, consisting of 1,618 pieces, which he presented to his sister Pauline Borghese, will be exhibited this summer by the Chicago Art Institute. It is a part of the collection of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, who has lent it for exhibition purposes for the first time.

The set was made by the Imperial jeweler, M. G. Biennais, after designs by Percier, who was a leading Parisian designer and architect of the period 1800-1806, its owner says. It bears the coat of arms of the Borghese family.

Institute officials declare the Roman influence is strongly marked in the service, as under the first empire Napoleon adhered to the classic style. Although the classic style in France was originally revived by Louis XVII through the discoveries made in Pompeii, under Napoleon's rule the style was carried to the extremes and designs of ornate embellishments appeared, which was in keeping with the aspirations of the first empire.

JOHNSON IN A COME-BACK

Great Falls, Mont., July 23.—Mayor James A. Johnson, backer of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight at Shelby, for the heavyweight championship of the world, recently drilled in the second big gusher of the week in the Kevin-Sunburst oil field, the Johnson-Sunburst Corey No. 2. The well is estimated as larger than the Shoshone No. 4, which came in last week for something like 10,000 barrels per day.

Western films are most popular in England.

HONOR RAINBOW DIVISION

BOOZE CHARGES LAID TO TWO

Harry Reidinger Charged With Two Separate Offenses

Harry Reidinger was bound over to district court today by Justice Anton Beer on charges of transporting intoxicating liquor and having possession of liquor, bond in each case being fixed at $1,000. Reidinger was under sentence, given April 1, 1924, by Judge Janzen, of 90 days in jail and $200 fine and $50 costs, to go into effect June 1, but he failed to show up on

COOK BY ELECTRICITY. IT IS CLEAN.

Automobiles are the most highly advertised American manufactures.

Elmer Benson, living in Trygg township, is under charges of violating the liquor law and at liberty on $500 bail. His place was searched, upon a search warrant delivered to the sheriff by the states attorney federal officers accompanying the sheriff. Officers asserted they found Benson making home brew and recovered 80 gallons of mash on 12 gallons of moonshine whisky, and confiscated a 15-gallon still.

Reidinger's place on Sweet street between Ninth and Tenth, was searched yesterday by Sheriff Hedstrom, Policeman Paul Pecht and two federal officers. The sheriff said they found home brew and beer. They learned Reidinger had gone to Mandan, they said, and when he came back across the bridge stopped his car and found three gallons of home brew in it. The car was confiscated.

WILL BELT EQUATOR WITH WHITE RIBBON

Is the Intention of the W. C. T. U., According to Mrs. Boole

Winona Lake, Ind., July 23.—"The World's W. C. T. U. is working to belt the equator with the white ribbon, the symbol of the organization founded half a century ago," said Mrs. Ella Alexander Boole of Brooklyn, N. Y., treasurer of the organization and vice president of the American W. C. T. U., speaking recently at the conference of the World League Against Alcoholism.

Reviewing the history of the W. C. T. U. for the half century, Mrs. Boole said:

"It was our great leader, Frances E. Willard, who not only united the women of the north, south, east and west in a great national organization, but to her came the vision of a great world's organization which would help the women of every country to do for home protection in their own land what the women were doing for the United States of America."

"Mrs. Margaret Bright Lucas was our first president. She was followed by Frances E. Willard, Lady Henry Somerset, Rosalind Countess of Carlisle, and Anna A. Gordon."

"Eleven world conventions have been held and the 12th biennial convention will be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 13-17, 1925. Fifty-one countries are federated with a total membership of 650,000. The largest membership is in the United States, with Great Britain second, Scotland third, and Canada, fourth."

"The World's W. C. T. U. is now helping the work through special gifts and the support of world's representatives in 20 nations. Their eyes are on America. They study our methods. They eagerly seek information as to the success of our policy of prohibition. The spread of prohibition in other lands depends upon the progress we make in law enforcement."

LABOR BOARD'S AUTHORITY IS IN QUESTION

Test May Come in Effort to Cause Union Officials to Give Testimony

Chicago, Ill., July 23.—General chairmen representing firemen and engineers on nearly all railroads west of Chicago, convened here today with their national officers to consider their procedure against the assumption of jurisdiction by the United States Railroad Labor Board in the dispute with the management.

L. G. Griffin, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, and D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, were here for the conference. If they vote to ignore the subpoenas served by the United States marshal and issued by the board and decide to absent themselves from the scheduled hearings Thursday, the board probably will invoke the aid of the United States District Court.

In such event the board will ask the court to order the witnesses summoned to give evidence affecting the wage dispute subject to penalty for contempt of court. Spokesmen for the organization have indicated their desire to test the assumption of jurisdiction in the courts. They deny that interruption of commerce has been threatened, the ground on which jurisdiction was assumed.
